Military Patrol, Moslems Clash; Four Men Killed

ALGIERS (AP)—Five thousand French troops surrounded the West Algerian seaport of Mostaganem Tuesday in a determined search for headquarters of the terrorist European Secret Army Organization.

All communications with Mostaganem were cut as the soldiers, with armored tanks and cars, combed the streets of the city of more than 60,000 inhabitants.

In the Algiers area meanwhile Moslems recruited by the French as auxiliary police to combat European terrorists fired on French troops. They intervened unexpectedly in a fight between a French military patrol and a band of armed Moslem civilians. A French lieutenant and three Moslems were killed.

The Mostaganem operation began at dawn after long and careful preparations. The army moved in after receiving reports that fugitive ex-Gen. Paul Gardy and his aides were hiding in the city.

Garby Succeeded Salan

Gardy became nominal chief of the Secret Army after the arrest of former Gen. Raoul Salan.

Salan was tried on treason charges and sentenced to life in prison last month.

The No. 2 Secret Army leader, ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud, was condemned to death and his execution could be carried out Wednesday unless French President Charles de Gaulle grants clemency.

Mostaganem, with a European population of 20,000, has been a center of murderous terrorism.

The firing between French troops and Moslem police occurred in the Beau Fraisier suburb of Algiers.

The incident caused deep concern among French authorities. They had based their hope for restoration of order in Algiers on cooperation between the French and Moslem forces.

Moslems Start Shooting

Police said the shooting was started by a group of Moslem civilians apparently belonging to the National Liberation Front, which guided the seven-year rebellion ended by the Evian peace accords March 18.

The North Africans fired on the French patrol, they said, and the soldiers immediately returned the fire. Moslem auxiliary policemen on duty in the district rushed in and opened up against the troops.

So far, 750 of these auxiliaries are on active duty.

At Oran, in western Algeria, a plastic bomb exploded in the heavily guarded police headquarters frequently used as an operational post by the city commander, Gen. Joseph Katz. Two soldiers were wounded.

Final Voyage Home For Plane Dead Arranged

PARIS (AP) —American and French officials arranged Tuesday a final voyage for the 121 Americans killed in Sunday's Air France jetliner disaster on Orly Field.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. of Atlanta, after long hours of effort to identiby the bodies of the victims—many his childhood friends—met late in the day with Joseph Roos, director-general of Air France, to discuss the return of the bodies to Georgia.

A spokesman for Air France said the bodies probably would be shipped by plane this week to Atlanta where relatives and close friends may aid in the task of identifying each victim. Most of the dead were leaders in the city's cultural and art life.

The mayor helped arrange for a joint Protestant-Catholic-Jewish memorial service for all the 130 victims Wednesday morning in the American (Episcopalian) Cathedral of Paris. He and Edwin Stern, an Atlanta city attorney, planned to board an Air France jetliner—similar to the one that crashed—for the United States Wednesday afternoon.

During the day the mayor called on Francoise Authie, one of the two survivors of the tragedy. Miss Authie, a stewardess who escaped virtually unharmed but who is still suffering from a state of shock, told Allen something of the last moments of the 121 passengers—most from Atlanta and the Atlanta region.

"She said they were all in a happy mood, happy to be going home," Allen recounted. "She said they were all very convivial, and she remarked especially on some of the children in the group.'

Kennedy, Ex-Presidents Congratulate Carpenter

NEW YORK (AP) — Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter accepted with modesty in Washington and in New York the nation's formal acclaim Tuesday for his cliff-hanging orbital flight of last month. Presidents vied in the warmth of their adulation with nameless well-wishers on the streets.

The 37-year-old Navy lieutenant commander told a civic luncheon at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel that future space flights "can bring you back riches in all fields of science that will stagger your imagination.'

"Greater steps will be made in all fields of science since possibly the discovery of fire,' Carpenter added.

In the capacity luncheon crowd were former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Harry S. Truman.

The latter, with characteristic candor, told the audience of Carpenter: "He has done something I wouldn't do, even if he promised to give me the moon if he could.'

Earlier, Carpenter, his blonde wife, Rene, and their four children had flown from Langley Field, Va., to Washington to receive personal congratulations from President Kennedy.

"I cannot imagine better representatives of what we like to think our country stands for than the men who have taken part in these flights,' the President said.

In turn, Carpenter described himself as "the one who happened to be the person who was the passenger.'

Jouhaud Asks Salan To Order Algeria Peace

PARIS (AP) — The condemned No. 2 chief of the European Secret Army Organization pleaded from his death cell Tuesday night for an end to the murderous terrorism carried on in Algeria by extremists opposing Algerian independence.

In an ironic climactic move the plea—if successful—would end a war by directives from two isolated prison cells occupied by disgraced generals.

While ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud initiated the appeal—a move that could save him from execution—5,000 French troops combed the western Algerian seaport of Mostaganem for the secret army's field leaders and headquarters.

Jouhaud, whose fate rests in the hands of President Charles de Gaulle, addressed his appeal to the imprisoned secret army leader, former Gen. Raoul Salan.

Jouhaud urged Salan to sign and issue an order saying: "This is the chief (of the secret army) who demands this (halt of fighting) of all those who spontaneously placed themselves under his orders.

"(Algerian) independence is a fact practically achieved, a fact which revolts us, which tolls the bell for our hopes, but which we must consider with realism.

"The blind attacks against the Moslems must cease.'

The text of Jouhaud's appeal was announced by a spokesman for French Premier Georges Pompidou. The announcement said the appeal was given by Jouhaud to the director of Fresnes Prison for delivery to Salan.

There was no immediate word on whether Salan would endorse what his onetime deputy was asking. Nor was there any word from the Elysee Palace on President de Gaulle's attitude. The fate of Jouhaud was still in De Gaulle's hands.

Salan, under life sentence, is believed to be in another cell of the same prison at Fresnes.

Some saw in the timing and urgency of the appeal a bid by Jouhaud to obtain clemency from De Gaulle.

Unless the president acts, Jouhaud could be executed, probably by a firing squad, as early as Wednesday.

Venezuelan Revolt Dead May Reach 400

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Authorities Tuesday estimated the battle dead of the abortive Puerto Cabello uprising at possibly 400 as the nation entered a three-day official mourning period.

By midday, 204 bodies had been counted in the city's morgues and health autorities adopted special measures to avert possible epidemics.

While some troops patroled Puerto Cabello's outskirts to head off any rebel stragglers attempting to reach the mountains, others searched for bodies in the bushes and on the beaches.

At his first news conference in six weeks, the Burmese U.S. chief disclosed that the world organization does not now plan military action to evict increasing numbers of foreign mercenaries reported in the Congo's dissident Katanga Province.

Rail Unions Accept 10.2 Cent Boost

Settlement Reached On Basis Of Report By Fact-Finders

CHICAGO (UPI) — Negotiators for the nation's railroads and 450,000 off-train employes announced Tuesday night they had reached agreement on wage increases as recommended by the President's fact-finding board.

The announcement ended a extraordinary night bargaining session which was called after officials from both sides failed to agree in all-day meetings.

George E. Leighty, chief union negotiator, said "we have agreed to everything recommended by the fact-finders.'

He said the 11 non-operating unions agreed to accept 10.2 cents an hour wage increase in the recommendation.

Leighty and J. E. Wolfe, spokesman for the railroads, emerged from the meeting smiling and shook hands for photographers.

The railroads announced Monday that they had offered members of 11 non-operating unions the 10.2 cents an hour wage increase recommended by a presidential fact-finding board.

Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg said in Washington Tuesday that the railroads and unions had accepted the emergency board's recommendations "in principle.'

One block to a final settlement was reported to be a dispute between union negotiators — representing telegraphers, clerks, section hands and other off-train workers—over whether to accept part of the offered wage boost in the form of a percentage increase or insist that it be spelled out in cents per hour.

The fact-finders' recommendations, accepted reluctantly by the carriers, called for:

—A 4-cent-an-hour pay boost retroactive to Feb. 1.

—A further increase of 2½ per cent retroactive to May 1. Railroad sources said the dual recommendations would add an average of 10.2 cents an hour to the wages of off-train employees who now average $2.48 an hour.

Razing Of Wall Adenauer Price For Red Credits

DORTMOND, Germany (AP)—If the East German Communists would tear down their Berlin wall West Germany might grant them significant trade credits, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Tuesday.

Mentioning for the first time that East German trade representatives have indicated they would like to buy more than two billion marks — $500 million—worth of goods from West Germany on credit, Adenauer commented: "If something is asked of us, then the least we should achieve is that the wall be put out of business."

The 86-year-old chancellor spoke at a luncheon for newsmen attending the convention of his Christian Democratic party.

The convention re-elected him head of the party, but chose a younger man, Josef Hermann Dufhues, 54, for the newly created post of executive party chairman. In theory Adenauer is supposed to share some of his power with Dufhues after some 15 years of one-man rule.

Weather Experts Label Soviet Contention Propaganda Storm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weather Bureau scientists said Tuesday the Russians are just trying to brew up a propaganda storm with their contention that planned U.S. high-altitude nuclear blasts could change the weather.

They said that not only is there nothing new to indicate that nuclear blasts of any kind have any significant effect on the weather but also that a blast at a height ranging from 40 to 500 miles is even less likely to produce a weather effect than is one at the earth's surface or lower altitudes.

The latter is so, meteorologist D. Lee Harris told a reporter, because the world's weather is essentially made in the realm of the atmosphere known as the troposphere. That ranges up to only about 35,000 feet in temperate latitudes and about 55,000 feet in the tropics—both far beneath the zone of the proposed U.S. space shots.

Last weekend, a Soviet government blast from Moscow charged that the projected high-altitude U.S. shot could change the weather. No scientific data was offered to back the contention.

"I can't conceive of any weather change that would be brought about by a detonation set off at 30 to 40 miles above the earth where there is no air," Harris said. He said a few scientists have theorized that a high-altitude blast might cause weather antics by increasing the ionization of the atmosphere or by increasing the amount of ozone—with the latter tending to absorb solar heat.

But he said all such theories are based on a chain of hypotheses, many of which are contradicted by most well-established data on weather.

Nixon Leading Shell In Calif. Primary Race

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon seized an early lead Tuesday night over state Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell in their battle to decide who will represent the Republican party against Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown next November.

Making his first bid for public office since he lost the presidency in 1960, Nixon got off to a fast start against Shell, who ran as a conservative. Brown had only token opposition in his bid for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Returns from 99 of the state's 31,212 precincts including 3 from populous Los Angeles County, which has 40 per cent of the state's vote, gave Nixon 2,323, Shell 1,214.

The first, fragmentary returns were not necessarily conclusive. At least four million Californians voted in the primary with a heavy GOP turnout reported in key counties.

The election is also regarded as a test of the relative strength of the John Birch Society (JBS). Nixon has denounced JBS founder Robert Welch and urged Republicans to quit the society as long as it is headed by Welch. Shell, while not a member of the Birch Society, welcomes its support.

Shell, 43, based his campaign on a pledge to cut taxes and government spending and said his 10 years as a state legislator gave him an edge over Nixon whose political career was spent mostly in Washington.

Kennedy On TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will hold a news conference at 4 p.m. EDT Thursday and it will be carried live on two of the television networks, the White House announced Tuesday.

Seven Rescued From Atlantic

BOSTON (UPI) — Seven men were spotted by chance and rescued from the cold Atlantic Tuesday more than two hours after their Navy boat sank in a freak accident.

A Coast Guard spokesman said that the seven, three civilians and four Navy men, probably would have died had they spent another half hour in the 50-degree water. All were reported in good condition, though not one had the strength to pull himself aboard the life boats that rescued them.

The Navy vessel, a 40-foot landing craft, was on a routine refuse-dumping mission in outer Boston harbor when the accident occurred four miles from shore.

Stock Market Fluctuates

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled to a small gain on average Tuesday in a fluctuating session of heavy trading.

The margin was narrow with key issues putting the averages ahead while declines exceeded advances in the general list.

The market slumped sharply after the opening, rallied strongly, fell back and then moved up again near the close.

Some of the credit for more enthusiastic buying was given by brokers to Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon's statement that the Kennedy administration will seek a general income tax reduction.

Steels, motors, utilities, rails and electronics showed a higher trend. Gains and losses of blue chips ranged from a few cents to $1 or $2.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks inched up .10 to 219.30. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 1.28 to 594.96 while Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced .30 to 57.57.

Ga. GOP Candidate For Governor Killed

WOODBURY, Ga. (UPI)—Georgia's first Republican gubernatorial candidate since Reconstruction days was killed in an automobile accident here Tuesday while returning home from a political dinner honoring New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

The accident occurred in this small town as lawyer A. Edward Smith, 60, and his wife Marilu were driving to their home in Columbus, about 110 miles from Atlanta where the political meeting was held.

State Republican leaders, in the midst of a hard-driving campaign to make Georgia a two-party state said the tragedy dealt them such a personal blow they could not immediately consider the political consequences.

Investigating officers said Smith's car veered into the path of a tractor trailer truck.

Ford Says Tax Cut Plan May Spur Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Ford II spoke optimistically Tuesday about the business outlook and said the economy may get a lift from announcement that the Kennedy administration will seek a top-to-bottom tax cut next year.

But Ford, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co., tempered his pleasure by saying what has been revealed about a tax cut "looks very glamorous, but I haven't seen the second page.'

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon announced the tax cut plan in a New York speech Monday. He did not indicate how deep the cut might be and said it would be coupled with revenue-raising proposals to offset all or part of the revenue loss to the treasury.

A completely noncommittal reaction was expressed by Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, who will be the key man in congressional consideration of a tax cut.

Asked about the tax cut plan by members of the House Rules Committee at a session on another legislature measure, Mills said:

"I have no thought about it. I don't know what they have in mind. I have not discussed it with anyone in a position to say."

At the White House, Press Secretary Pierre Salinger refused to be drawn into any discussion about the plan or to say if the announcement represented a shift in position by Dillon.

Salinger did say, however, that President Kennedy was aware ahead of time of what Dillon would say in his speech.

Democratic congressional leaders conferred with Kennedy at their usual Tuesday breakfast and reported afterward that they told him that they would welcome a message from him recommending tax cuts.

Senate Unit Votes Funds For RS70, Army Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee, bucking the administration's desires, has secretly voted all the money the Air Force asked to develop its super-reconnaissance plane—the RS70—plus funds to head off a cutback in the reserves.

It was learned Tuesday from informed sources that the Senate Military Appropriations subcommittee has added over a quarter billion dollars to the $48-bilion defense money bill.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., acting chairman of the group, refused to tell newsmen about the decisions until the Appropriations Committee meets on Friday. The committee usually goes along with the subcommittee's recommendations.

From other sources, it was learned that the subcommittee wrote in the full $491 million asked by Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Air Force chief of staff, for developing the 2,000 mile-an-hour RS70 as a full-fledged weapon.

President Kennedy asked only for $171 million to continue development of prototypes of the reconnaissance-strike plane. The House raised this to $224 million when it passed the bill.

The subcommittee went along with the House in adding $59 million to prevent planned cuts in the Army Reserve and National Guard. But the senators also tacked on an extra $7.5 million to keep the Air Force and Navy Reserves at current ceilings.

Wants Social Security View 'Set Straight'

Past Actions Cited As Denoting Medical Group's Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy renewed the fight over his health care program Tuesday with a brisk challenge to the American Medical Association to set the record straight on its policy toward Social Security.

In a letter to Dr. Leonard Larson, AMA president, Kennedy cited past actions he said indicated the organization's opposition to the Social Security system—under which the medical plan would help finance care for the aged.

The letter, released by the White House, was in reply to a message Larson sent the President late last month charging Kennedy had created the impression the AMA had called Social Security a "cruel hoax" and was among opponents of its enactment in the 1930s.

Untrue, Larson Says

This, Larson's message had declared, was untrue. The AMA had never opposed Social Security, took no position on it and actually supported a section on extension of public health services, he said.

To this Kennedy replied Tuesday:

"If your organization did not oppose Social Security before its enactment—only afterward—I will be glad to point out this unique distinction at my next press conference.

"On the other hand, if the AMA has never opposed Social Security, some questions may be asked in order to set the record straight."

He then asked:

Why Dr. Morris Fishbein, former editor of the AMA Journal, made a statement in November 1939 at the request of the AMA board of trustees, and published it the next issue of the Journal with remarks saying compulsory insurance, even old age and unemployment insurance represent "a beginning invasion by the state into the personal life of the individual—a definite step toward either communism or totalitarianism."

Other Questions Posed

Why the AMA in 1949 sent to all members of Congress a resolution approved by its House of Delegates calling Social Security a "compulsory socialistic tax," and saying it "has served as the entering wedge for establishment of a socialistic form of governmental control over the lives and fortunes of the people."

Why the AMA House of Delegates declared in 1953 it had previously registered disapproval of the principle involved in Social Security.

AMA Charges Smoke Screen

CHICAGO (AP)—The president of the American Medical Association, replying to President Kennedy, declared Tuesday the King-Anderson medical care bill, not the AMA is on trial.

Dr. Leonard W. Larson, head of the association, issued this statement in reply to a challenge from Kennedy to set the record straight on its policy toward Social Security.

"President Kennedy made the statement in his May 23 news con-

Razing Of Wall Adenauer Price For Red Credits

DORTMOND, Germany (AP)—If the East German Communists would tear down their Berlin wall West Germany might grant them significant trade credits, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Tuesday.

Mentioning for the first time that East German trade representatives have indicated they would like to buy more than two billion marks — $500 million—worth of goods from West Germany on credit, Adenauer commented: "If something is asked of us, then the least we should achieve is that the wall be put out of business."

The 86-year-old chancellor spoke at a luncheon for newsmen attending the convention of his Christian Democratic party.

The convention re-elected him head of the party, but chose a younger man, Josef Hermann Dufhues, 54, for the newly created post of executive party chairman. In theory Adenauer is supposed to share some of his power with Dufhues after some 15 years of one-man rule.

Weather Experts Label Soviet Contention Propaganda Storm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weather Bureau scientists said Tuesday the Russians are just trying to brew up a propaganda storm with their contention that planned U.S. high-altitude nuclear blasts could change the weather.

They said that not only is there nothing new to indicate that nuclear blasts of any kind have any significant effect on the weather but also that a blast at a height ranging from 40 to 500 miles is even less likely to produce a weather effect than is one at the earth's surface or lower altitudes.

The latter is so, meteorologist D. Lee Harris told a reporter, because the world's weather is essentially made in the realm of the atmosphere known as the troposphere. That ranges up to only about 35,000 feet in temperate latitudes and about 55,000 feet in the tropics—both far beneath the zone of the proposed U.S. space shots.

Last weekend, a Soviet government blast from Moscow charged that the projected high-altitude U.S. shot could change the weather. No scientific data was offered to back the contention.

"I can't conceive of any weather change that would be brought about by a detonation set off at 30 to 40 miles above the earth where there is no air," Harris said. He said a few scientists have theorized that a high-altitude blast might cause weather antics by increasing the ionization of the atmosphere or by increasing the amount of ozone—with the latter tending to absorb solar heat.

But he said all such theories are based on a chain of hypotheses, many of which are contradicted by most well-established data on weather.

Nixon Leading Shell In Calif. Primary Race

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon seized an early lead Tuesday night over state Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell in their battle to decide who will represent the Republican party against Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown next November.

Making his first bid for public office since he lost the presidency in 1960, Nixon got off to a fast start against Shell, who ran as a conservative. Brown had only token opposition in his bid for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Returns from 99 of the state's 31,212 precincts including 3 from populous Los Angeles County, which has 40 per cent of the state's vote, gave Nixon 2,323, Shell 1,214.

The first, fragmentary returns were not necessarily conclusive. At least four million Californians voted in the primary with a heavy GOP turnout reported in key counties.

The election is also regarded as a test of the relative strength of the John Birch Society (JBS). Nixon has denounced JBS founder Robert Welch and urged Republicans to quit the society as long as it is headed by Welch. Shell, while not a member of the Birch Society, welcomes its support.

Shell, 43, based his campaign on a pledge to cut taxes and government spending and said his 10 years as a state legislator gave him an edge over Nixon whose political career was spent mostly in Washington.

Kennedy On TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will hold a news conference at 4 p.m. EDT Thursday and it will be carried live on two of the television networks, the White House announced Tuesday.

Seven Rescued From Atlantic

BOSTON (UPI) — Seven men were spotted by chance and rescued from the cold Atlantic Tuesday more than two hours after their Navy boat sank in a freak accident.

A Coast Guard spokesman said that the seven, three civilians and four Navy men, probably would have died had they spent another half hour in the 50-degree water. All were reported in good condition, though not one had the strength to pull himself aboard the life boats that rescued them.

The Navy vessel, a 40-foot landing craft, was on a routine refuse-dumping mission in outer Boston harbor when the accident occurred four miles from shore.

Stock Market Fluctuates

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market struggled to a small gain on average Tuesday in a fluctuating session of heavy trading.

The margin was narrow with key issues putting the averages ahead while declines exceeded advances in the general list.

The market slumped sharply after the opening, rallied strongly, fell back and then moved up again near the close.

Some of the credit for more enthusiastic buying was given by brokers to Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon's statement that the Kennedy administration will seek a general income tax reduction.

Steels, motors, utilities, rails and electronics showed a higher trend. Gains and losses of blue chips ranged from a few cents to $1 or $2.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks inched up .10 to 219.30. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 1.28 to 594.96 while Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced .30 to 57.57.

Ga. GOP Candidate For Governor Killed

WOODBURY, Ga. (UPI)—Georgia's first Republican gubernatorial candidate since Reconstruction days was killed in an automobile accident here Tuesday while returning home from a political dinner honoring New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

The accident occurred in this small town as lawyer A. Edward Smith, 60, and his wife Marilu were driving to their home in Columbus, about 110 miles from Atlanta where the political meeting was held.

State Republican leaders, in the midst of a hard-driving campaign to make Georgia a two-party state said the tragedy dealt them such a personal blow they could not immediately consider the political consequences.

Investigating officers said Smith's car veered into the path of a tractor trailer truck.

Ford Says Tax Cut Plan May Spur Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Ford II spoke optimistically Tuesday about the business outlook and said the economy may get a lift from announcement that the Kennedy administration will seek a top-to-bottom tax cut next year.

But Ford, board chairman of the Ford Motor Co., tempered his pleasure by saying what has been revealed about a tax cut "looks very glamorous, but I haven't seen the second page.'

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon announced the tax cut plan in a New York speech Monday. He did not indicate how deep the cut might be and said it would be coupled with revenue-raising proposals to offset all or part of the revenue loss to the treasury.

A completely noncommittal reaction was expressed by Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, who will be the key man in congressional consideration of a tax cut.

Asked about the tax cut plan by members of the House Rules Committee at a session on another legislature measure, Mills said:

"I have no thought about it. I don't know what they have in mind. I have not discussed it with anyone in a position to say."

At the White House, Press Secretary Pierre Salinger refused to be drawn into any discussion about the plan or to say if the announcement represented a shift in position by Dillon.

Salinger did say, however, that President Kennedy was aware ahead of time of what Dillon would say in his speech.

Democratic congressional leaders conferred with Kennedy at their usual Tuesday breakfast and reported afterward that they told him that they would welcome a message from him recommending tax cuts.

Wants Social Security View 'Set Straight'

Past Actions Cited As Denoting Medical Group's Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy renewed the fight over his health care program Tuesday with a brisk challenge to the American Medical Association to set the record straight on its policy toward Social Security.

In a letter to Dr. Leonard Larson, AMA president, Kennedy cited past actions he said indicated the organization's opposition to the Social Security system—under which the medical plan would help finance care for the aged.

The letter, released by the White House, was in reply to a message Larson sent the President late last month charging Kennedy had created the impression the AMA had called Social Security a "cruel hoax" and was among opponents of its enactment in the 1930s.

Untrue, Larson Says

This, Larson's message had declared, was untrue. The AMA had never opposed Social Security, took no position on it and actually supported a section on extension of public health services, he said.

To this Kennedy replied Tuesday:

"If your organization did not oppose Social Security before its enactment—only afterward—I will be glad to point out this unique distinction at my next press conference.

"On the other hand, if the AMA has never opposed Social Security, some questions may be asked in order to set the record straight."

He then asked:

Why Dr. Morris Fishbein, former editor of the AMA Journal, made a statement in November 1939 at the request of the AMA board of trustees, and published it the next issue of the Journal with remarks saying compulsory insurance, even old age and unemployment insurance represent "a beginning invasion by the state into the personal life of the individual—a definite step toward either communism or totalitarianism."

Other Questions Posed

Why the AMA in 1949 sent to all members of Congress a resolution approved by its House of Delegates calling Social Security a "compulsory socialistic tax," and saying it "has served as the entering wedge for establishment of a socialistic form of governmental control over the lives and fortunes of the people."

Why the AMA House of Delegates declared in 1953 it had previously registered disapproval of the principle involved in Social Security.

AMA Charges Smoke Screen

Senate Unit Votes Funds For RS70, Army Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee, bucking the administration's desires, has secretly voted all the money the Air Force asked to develop its super-reconnaissance plane—the RS70—plus funds to head off a cutback in the reserves.

It was learned Tuesday from informed sources that the Senate Military Appropriations subcommittee has added over a quarter billion dollars to the $48-billion defense money bill.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., acting chairman of the group, refused to tell newsmen about the decisions until the Appropriations Committee meets on Friday. The committee usually goes along with the subcommittee's recommendations.

From other sources, it was learned that the subcommittee wrote in the full $491 million asked by Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Air Force chief of staff, for developing the 2,000 mile-an-hour RS70 as a full-fledged weapon.

President Kennedy asked only for $171 million to continue development of prototypes of the reconnaissance-strike plane. The House raised this to $224 million when it passed the bill.

The subcommittee went along with the House in adding $59 million to prevent planned cuts in the Army Reserve and National Guard. But the senators also tacked on an extra $7.5 million to keep the Air Force and Navy Reserves at current ceilings.

Outlook Bright For Avoiding Md. Tax Boost

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Prospects brightened Tuesday for avoiding a major state tax increase in Maryland next year.

Revenue officials said the state will probably end the current fiscal year June 30 with a general fund surplus $5 million to $6 million higher than was originally forecast last December.

If the trend holds through the rest of the calendar year, accumulating an additional $6 million or so, the next chief executive could go before the 1963 legislature with a budget which might be balanced without new taxes.

Gov. Tawes, who is seeking reelection this fall, still has in storage $6 million of a revenue deficiency fund which could be combined with any surplus available for meeting a budget gap. The combined funds should total $18 million or more. Normal budget growth has been $17 million a year in recent years.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein raised the prospect of an easing revenue problem with a report Tuesday that state income taxes—based on collections through May—should yield more than $2 million over estimates in the current year. He previously had issued a similar forecast for sales tax revenues, based on 10 months of collections.

These two tax sources account for 75 per cent of the state's general fund revenue. W. Irvin Young, chief of the Bureau of Revenue Estimates, said other general fund taxes should account for a further increase of a million dollars or more.

The picture has changed considerably since Gov. Tawes met with the Board of Revenue Estimates last December to prepare his fiscal 1963 budget for submismission to the legislature which convened in February.

He was told the state's anticipated surplus would be about $12.3 million. He had a budget gap of $18 million to close so he dipped into a two-year-old revenue deficiency fund of $12 million for future use.

Goldstein reported Tuesday that income tax collections through May totaled $117.5 million after refunds to taxpayers, compared with $109.5 million for the same period last year.

This has been distributed as follows: $93.1 million to the general fund, $22.3 million into a reserve for subdivisions which share in the income tax on individuals and nearly $2 million to the Maryland Port Authority, which gets a share of the state corporation income tax.

More Research Against Radioactivity Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A panel of scientists recommended Tuesday night intensified research for measures to counter nuclear radioactivity lest the nation be "faced in a few years with contamination problems which cannot be easily solved."

The National Advisory Council in Radiation also called for greatly expanded monitoring for radioactive contamination.

Stating that current conditions resulting from nuclear weapons testing do not require countermeasures, the committee warned however: "Attention has previously been directed to the need for a markedly intensified research effort to develop safe and effective countermeasures against all types of radioactive contamination of public health importance.

"Unless this effort is undertaken now, the nation may well be faced in a few years with contamination problems which cannot be easily solved.

"The committee therefore strongly recommends that full support be given to an intensive countermeasure research and development program under the leadership of the Public Health Service."

The report was made public by Surgeon General Luther L. Terry of the Public Health Service after regular office hours.

Informed sources said it had been submitted previously to the White House for possible issuance from there. Terry said the document had been submitted to him in early May and in the interval since has been reviewed within the government.

Viscose Pact Vote Set Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employes of the American Viscose Corp. will vote Wednesday on terms of a new three-year labor contract negotiated by the Textile Workers of America, AFL-CIO.

The agreement calls for benefit and wage increases estimated to cost about 20 cents an hour over the three-year period. The employes, located in six plants in three states, now have a straight time pay rate of $2.13 an hour.

The plants, which produce tire cord and other synthetic yarns, are located at Marcus Hook, Lewistown and Meadville, Pa., Nitro and Parkersburg, W. Va., and Front Royal, Va.

The agreement calls for increases in benefits but no wage increase effective June 1 this year, with 5-cent wage increases on the first and second contract anniversaries.

The company, which has been paying hospital and surgical insurance premiums for workers and their spouses, will pay such costs for workers' children beginning immediately. Other first-year benefits include expanded holiday pay, layoff allowances and more liberal early retirement features.

Beginning next Jan. 1 eligibility for three-week vacations will be reduced from 15 to 12 years and for four-week vacations from 25 to 20 years.

Job Security Terms Imperil Rail Merger

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that the proposed consolidation of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads might be jeopardized by employe job security requirements was raised Tuesday by the two railroads.

They said conditions proposed by an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing examiner might be too expensive and might also raise a barrier to other railroad merger proposals.

The view was set forth in a brief of exceptions filed with the ICC by lawyers for the B&O and C&O.

The job security conditions were outlined by hearing examiner John L. Bradford last Mal 12 when he recommended that the ICC approve acquisition by the C&O of control of the B&O with a view toward ultimate merger.

Discussing Bradford's recommended conditions, the railroads said the "cost would be prohibitive . . . and would create endless disputes, litigation, and delays."

The two roads said Bradford's proposals went beyond precedent established in previous railroad mergers by the ICC. It referred to cases in which the ICC provided for compensation to displaced workers.

Wisconsin Parochial School Bus Law KO'd

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)— The Wisconsin Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that the state's controversial parochial school bus law was unconstitutional.

The 4-2 decision knocked out a law, passed by the 1961 legislature, that was to have gone into effect July 1.

The court held that the law providing state aid for transportation of children in private and parochial schools directly violated a constitutional provision that "prohibits the expenditure of any public funds for the benefit of religious societies or religious or theological seminaries."

Judge Michael J. Manley increased the defendant's bond from $500 to $5,000 pending sentencing.

China Refugee Family Starts New Life

CHICAGO (AP) — A refugee family of five from Communist China went about the task Tuesday of starting a new life in the United States.

Eng See Suey, 45, his wife, Yung Suey San, and three of their four children arrived at O'Hare International Airport early Tuesday after a 20-hour flight from Hong Kong.

The Engs are the first Chinese refugee family to be admitted to this country under President Kennedy's emergency admission program. Under the program, the immigration quota has been temporarily suspended to permit entry of several thousand refugees from Communist China.

"This is the happiest day of my life," Eng told a group of relatives and suburban Park Ridge officials who met the family after their arrival.

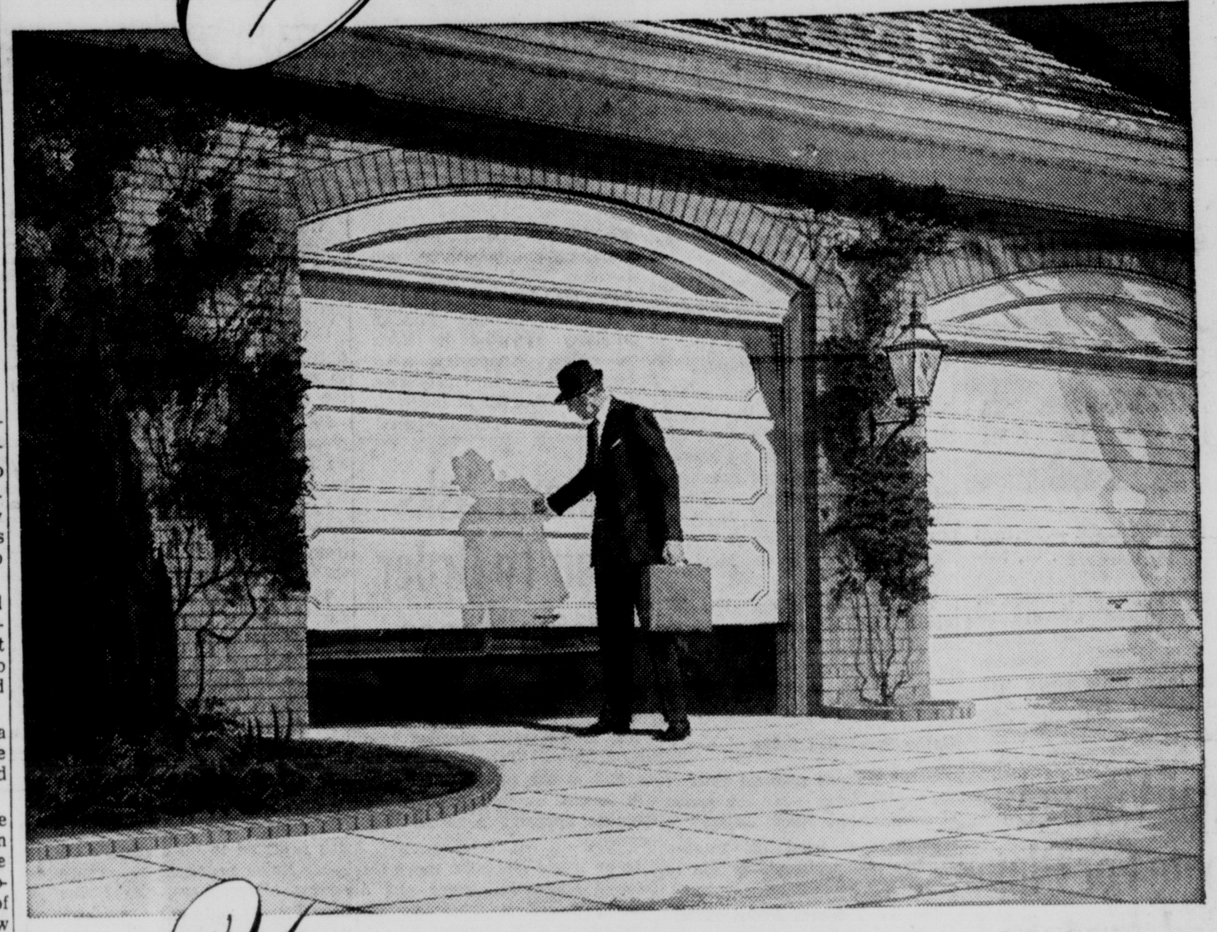

The Engs plan to live in Park Ridge, where Eng's father, Frank Jing Eng, 79, a restaurateur, is critically ill. The elder Eng left China in 1916 and he and his son met only once before, in 1959 when the father visited Hong Kong.

The younger Eng visited his father soon after the family arrived. Later, Eng and his wife were taken on a tour of Chicago and then conducted a news conference in the Palmer House Hotel.

Eng told newsmen at the airport he was grateful that President Kennedy had set up the emergency admission program that resulted in the Eng family's entry into the United States.

Cadillac

How to pay for a Cadillac—and not get one!

There are several ways that a man can pay the price of a new Cadillac car—and find himself in possession of an automobile of far less stature.

Because there are many motorists currently considering the purchase of their next car, we would like to enumerate these ways of going astray.

1. Assume that the purchase price of a new Cadillac car is higher than it actually is. (There are eleven models of other makes that this year cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac model.)

2. Fail to appreciate that the basic price of a new Cadillac includes important things that are extra on many other cars. (Including automatic transmission, power steering and power braking.)

3. Neglect to find out from a Cadillac dealer what your present car is worth in trade. (He is especially anxious this spring to welcome new owners.)

And if you take one of these detours, think of all the unique pleasures you could be missing.

There is Cadillac's styling—so majestic that it attracts attention wherever it goes.

There is Cadillac's comfort—so wonderful that every journey becomes a brief vacation.

And there is Cadillac's performance—so great that it is without rival on the world's highways.

So we suggest that you play it safe—and get all the facts from your dealer soon.

You might be closer to a Cadillac than you think.

1. Assume that the purchase price of a new Cadillac car is higher than it actually is. (There are eleven models of other makes that this year cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac model.)

2. Fail to appreciate that the basic price of a new Cadillac includes important things that are extra on many other cars. (Including automatic transmission, power steering and power braking.)

3. Neglect to find out from a Cadillac dealer what your present car is worth in trade. (He is especially anxious this spring to welcome new owners.)

And if you take one of these detours, think of all the unique pleasures you could be missing.

There is Cadillac's styling—so majestic that it attracts attention wherever it goes.

There is Cadillac's comfort—so wonderful that every journey becomes a brief vacation.

And there is Cadillac's performance—so great that it is without rival on the world's highways.

So we suggest that you play it safe—and get all the facts from your dealer soon.

You might be closer to a Cadillac than you think.

Dead Girl, 14, Fatally Wounded Driver Found In Wrecked Car

WATERLOO, Md. (AP) — The semi-nude body of a pretty, 14-year-old girl shot in the head was found Tuesday in the trunk of a car just after it was wrecked on the Baltimore-Washington Expressway.

The man driving the car—forced off the road after a chase by State Police — was in the front seat, also shot in the head. He died in a hospital two hours later.

State Police said the deaths of Joanne May Hillegas and Charles Alfred Reppert Jr., 29, both of Allentown, Pa., apparently were murder and suicide.

The Medical Examiner's Office said after an autopsy the girl was sexually attacked. She died of a single shot in the head from a 22-caliber weapon.

Dr. Charles Petty, who performed autopsies on both victims, said a bullet wound in the head also was the cause of Reppert's death. He said this wound also was probably caused by a 22-caliber weapon but this could not be determined definitely.

Police found a handwritten note in the car's glove compartment signed "Charlie," and addressed to Joanne's grandparents.

"Last Christmas, at the party, I fell in love with Joanne and couldn't help it," it said in part. "She couldn't help it, either. I tried to forget her but couldn't. So I kept on loving her.

"Now she is lying beside me in the car. Her blood is staining the seat from the wound in her head. As soon as I can mail this letter, I will join her. Please believe me, I am sorry."

The note was sealed in a stamped envelope addressed to Willard and Pearl Boger in Allentown, the grandparents with whom the girl had lived since her mother was killed 14 years ago.

Joanne was a ninth grader at a school in Allentown. Reppert was a 277-pound electrician who worked for her grandfather and was well known to the family. Police in Allentown said he was convicted of indecent exposure and fined $100 April 3, 1961.

Joanne's 15-year-old brother, Tommy, told police he was with his sister and Reppert in the car Monday night, en route to visit relatives, when he was put out of the car at Robbsville, five miles south of Easton, Pa.

The boy said Reppert told him he wanted to talk to Joanne alone, then sped away.

State Police Cpl. Roswell Jones spotted the car about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday zig-zagging south on the expressway about 12 miles south of Baltimore, near the turnoff to Friendship International Airport.

Jones flashed his lights and signaled the car to pull over.

"Within seconds, the car seemed to be pulling over in a routine fashion," he said. "Suddenly, it swerved sharply, went through a guardrail and crashed into an embankment."

Reppert died in a Baltimore hospital without regaining consciousness.

The Bank With An Eye To The Future!

Accused Embezzler Out On Bond

BALTIMORE (AP)—Mrs. Martha A. Smith, charged with embezzling $15,036 from a bank in Annapolis, was released in $2,500 bond after an appearance Tuesday before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart.

The FBI placed the charges against the 59-year-old woman, who was head teller and assistant cashier of the Annapolis branch of the Maryland National Bank. She had been employed since 1942 by the bank, which formerly was the County Trust Company of Maryland.

The FBI accused Mrs. Smith of having taken the money in small amounts since 1954. She was specifically charged with embezzling and misapplying $15,036.75 in bank funds on or about July 6 last year.

Edward J. Powers, special agent in charge of the Baltimore office, said a federal bank examiner round $8,509 to be missing from Mrs. Smith's cash on May 9 this year and that a subsequent investigation showed a total of $16,939.25 missing since 1954.

Powers said shortages had been concealed by delays in giving credit for large deposits.

Mrs. Smith is married to Walter B. Smith Jr. of Annapolis and has been prominent in civic and church activities. They have three children, all of them married.

Music for the school will be under direction of Mrs. Harold Ours, and Mrs. Carl Moreland will be secretary-treasurer.

Youth Gets Year For Auto Theft

Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey yesterday sentenced Ronald K. Hare, local youth, to a year in the Maryland House of Correction on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile.

Hare was charged with taking a car owned by Victor Wonn from the Blue and White parking lot on May 2. He later abandoned the auto in nearby West Virginia in a damaged condition.

Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney, presented the state's case while Jack Mullen was the court-appointed counsel for Hare.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Every building and loan association in Maryland has been sent an application form for joining the Maryland Savings-Share Insurance Corp., the new insurance deposit plan.

The program, sponsored by the state but privately financed, will go into effect after 25 associations holding $25 million in deposits are admitted to the corporation. The organization was created because many state-chartered associations are not eligible for federal insurance.

SALISBURY (AP) — A panel of judges will select Maryland's entry in the Miss America pageant during a two-day contest to be held in the civic center here, June 27-28.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Theodore R. McKeldin, governor of Maryland from 1950 to 1954, was named Tuesday to receive the Leopold C. Glass Memorial Award for "exemplary patriotism' in ceremonies at Independence Square on Flag Day, June 14.

Judge Kendall H. Shoyer, of Orphans Court, president of the Philadelphia Flag Day Association, announced the award. McKeldin will be the 10th recipient.

School Addition Is Approved

Following an inspection by architects and school officials, the new Parkside School addition has been approved, Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

Making the inspection were Richard Lutz, engineer, and Clayton Pittiglio, architect, both of Johannes and Murray, the Silver Spring firm hired by Allegany County Board of Education to make the plans for the annex; Webser and William George, of the George Construction Company which built the brick structure.

Webster reported the Johannes and Murray representatives were very complimentary to the high quality of construction.

The addition contains six rooms, toilet, storage room and the George firm had the successful bid of $143,933 to construct it.

Webster pointed out that two alternate bid totaling $3,150 were added to the cost.

In addition to the building, a public address system was installed, giving communications with the main building. The addition is separated from the school by a covered walkway.

Most of the equipment for the Parkside addition has arrived and the rooms will be ready for use by September.

The school head also reported that work is progressing on the addition to Gephart School.

There three new rooms are being built; the present auditorium is being divided into two classrooms and a new combined cafeteria and auditorium is being furnished.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ian Ross MacFarlane, noted newspaper correspondent and radio commentator, died in Johns Hopkins Hospital Tuesday. He was 60.

MacFarlane had been in failing health for several years after he contracted hepatitis in Africa three years ago while gathering material for lectures and a broadcasting network.

In addition, the contractor, the George F. Hazelwood Company, is providing a new principal's office, a teacher's room and health room.

Additions were necessary to the two schools due to increased populations in their areas. The money comes from the $5,000,000 school construction board issued.

River Flow Report Given

The observed mean daily flow of the North Branch of the Potomac River at the Wiley Ford guage during May was a little over half the 32-year average for that month.

The flow was 891 cubic feet per second or 576,000,000 gallons daily. The daily flow varied between 660 cubic feet per second or 427,000,000 gallons and 1,440 cubic feet per second or 931,000,000 gallons daily.

An equivalent of 21 cubic feet per second or 13,600,000 gallons was retained in storage at the Savage River Dam Reservoir. This would be 2.4 per cent of the flow at Cumberland.

The total precipitation at Cumberland as reported by the Weather Bureau was 3.77 inches or .35 of an inch above the May average. The average daily temperature was 66.5 degrees which is 3.5 degrees above normal.

The statistics were provided by A. A. Vickers, engineer in charge of the Geological Survey office of the Department of Interior here.

Commissioners Ask Appointment Delay

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday instructed James G. Stevenson, board clerk, to write to Dr. Thomas W. Waxter, director of the State Department of Welfare, to hold up on officially naming three new members of the County Welfare Board.

The action followed an inquiry by Commissioner John Tucker Mason as to why Rev. Charles W. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, had not been on the list of eligibles for the board. Father Bogan had been serving an unexpired term on the board.

Mason said that Father Bogan had been very active as a member of the board and also provided representation for a large section of Cumberland.

Both Commissioners John J. Rowan and Louis V. Shinnamon said they were unaware that Father Bogan had been eligible as persons filling a complete term on the Welfare Board can not be renamed. The commissioners said that the absence of Father Bogan's name from the list was probably an oversight on the part of the local Welfare Board.

William Howard Taft is the only man in American history to have held the offices of both president and chief justice.

Tawes Ticket Gives Report

The Tawes Ticket Committee yesterday filed a report with Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, on expenses and contributions for the primary election last May 15.

Total receipts of $6,181.88 were listed in the report by Leslie J. Clark, committee treasurer. Expenses were $5,363.97, leaving a balance of $827.91.

Headquarters expenses were $2,111.97 and election day expenses were $3,242. The contributions ranged from $5 to $500 from various individuals.

The incisor teeth of the pocket gopher grow at the rate of an inch a week. His incessant knawing keeps them worn down for practical use.

Meter Receipts Drop

Parking meter receipts the week of May 27 amounted to $778.25 compared to $828.70 the week of May 20, a decrease of $50.45, Inspector Harry Whisner reported Monday to the Mayor and Council.

Car Bid Accepted

The low bid of the Gratton Ford Company to furnish a sedan for use by the County Roads Department was accepted yesterday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Junior Stenographer Examination Planned

The City of Cumberland will conduct an examination for junior stenographer to fill a vacancy in the office of the comptroller.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery said the exam will establish an eligible list for the position.

Applications will be received until 5 p. m. June 14 and a date for the exam will be established the week of June 18.

ATTENTION SUB-CONTRACTORS

Mr. D. A. Davis, Jr. of Baltimore Contractors, Inc. will be at the Algonquin Hotel on Wednesday, June 6th to accept sub-bids on the Hercules Powder Company job, Rocket Center, West Virginia, due on the 19th; and the Manganese Chemical Corporation, Kingswood, West Virginia, due on the 14th.

School Addition Is Approved

Following an inspection by architects and school officials, the new Parkside School addition has been approved, Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

Making the inspection were Richard Lutz, engineer, and Clayton Pittiglio, architect, both of Johannes and Murray, the Silver Spring firm hired by Allegany County Board of Education to make the plans for the annex; Webser and William George, of the George Construction Company which built the brick structure.

Webster reported the Johannes and Murray representatives were very complimentary to the high quality of construction.

The addition contains six rooms, toilet, storage room and the George firm had the successful bid of $143,933 to construct it.

Webster pointed out that two alternate bid totaling $3,150 were added to the cost.

In addition to the building, a public address system was installed, giving communications with the main building. The addition is separated from the school by a covered walkway.

Most of the equipment for the Parkside addition has arrived and the rooms will be ready for use by September.

The school head also reported that work is progressing on the addition to Gephart School.

There three new rooms are being built; the present auditorium is being divided into two classrooms and a new combined cafeteria and auditorium is being furnished.

In addition, the contractor, the George F. Hazelwood Company, is providing a new principal's office, a teacher's room and health room.

Additions were necessary to the two schools due to increased populations in their areas. The money comes from the $5,000,000 school construction board issued.

$500 Increase Is Sought For State Workers

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Classified Employees Association says it will campaign for a $500 per year salary increase for all of the state's some 22,000 employes.

Such a salary increase would cost Maryland at least $11 million a year.

The executive director of the association, D. Worthington Pearre, outlined a 12-point program that, he said, would be supported by the 12,000 members of the association.

Seek Fringe Issues

In addition to the salary increase, the program included payment of time and a half for overtime; expanded sick leave benefits; differential pay for night work; establishment of a $1.25 minimum wage, and establishment of a hospital and medical insurance program for state employes with state participation.

Pearre said he could not estimate the cost to the state of the entire program.

Pearre promised "an intensive all-out campaign to insure the successful achievement of the goals." He said the campaign started Monday when the association wrote Gov. Tawes, asking for an opportunity to discuss the program with him.

Discussion Set

The next step, Pearre said, will be a county-by-county discussion of the program with members of the General Assembly.

Pearre said the last general pay increase for state employes was in 1956. He said the state now has no state-participating hospital and medical insurance program; pays only straight time for overtime, and does not pay extra for night work.

He said payment of a $1.25 minimum wage would affect primarily janitors and service personnel at state institutions and would cost the state about $300,000 a year.

Illegal Whisky Charge Placed Against Man

A West Virginia timber cutter was arrested Saturday by investigators of the Alcohol and Tobacco Division of the Treasury Department and charged with illegal possession and transportation of illegal whisky.

The man, Paul J. Ziler, 51, of Great Cacapon, was released under $1,000 bond at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner James A. Avirett. Ziler will be given a hearing on the charges, and three other related counts, in Federal District Court, Baltimore.

The investigators, Ernest A. Breakfield Jr. and John L. Burkholder, made the arrest in the Oldtown area after Ziler had crossed over to Maryland from Paw Paw.

The agents said Ziler made no protest after they identified themselves. The "moonshine" was in a charred oak keg in the trunk of his 1958 automobile, and Breakfield and Burkholder said the illegal and untaxed whisky tested out at 108 proof.

Described as "apparently very good stuff," the whisky would have been taxed at about $65, the agents said. As it is, Ziler faces the possibility of prison sentences of from two to five years, and or fines of up to $1,000, if convicted.

Burkholder and Breakfield said they have notified division agents in West Virginia of the arrest, and they added that a search was to be made of Ziler's residence for the illegal still, believed to be located in the basement of the home.

Ziler told the local agents he made his first "moonshine" back in Prohibition days, adding that he had never operated on a large scale. The agents said they were inclined to believe Ziler, since this was his first arrest on a federal charge.

Ziler, a bachelor, works as a timber cutter, the local agents said.

Aging Unit Officers, Directors Approved

The new officers, directors and advisory board of the Allegany County Commission on Problems of the Aging were approved yesterday by the county commissioners.

New officers are Robert Peebles, president; James Smith, vice chairman; Mrs. Nelliemae Redhead, secretary.

Directors, who will serve for three years, are Miss Margaret Morrissey, Mrs. John S. Cook, James Close, Dr. J. E. McLean, Mrs. Jennie J. Graham, Glen Boyd, and Frank T. Powers.

The advisory board members named are Judge W. Earle Cobey and Francis A. Kenney.

Police Report Given

There were 649 arrests and fines collected amounting to $1,794.85 last month, the Police Department reported to the Mayor and Council Monday. The Fire Department responded to 31 calls.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	1 ♠	2 ♣	4 ♠
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠

Declarer was careful to examine all the evidence in today's hand before he made his decision on how to play the diamond suit. His patience was ultimately rewarded by a correct reading of the adverse holdings.

The first round of bidding was reasonable tho perhaps a word is in order concerning West's preëmptive jump to four spades. This action may appear quite drastic at first blush, with only four high card points. However, East's overcall should be based on a good suit, so that the void in clubs plus four trumps offers attractive trick taking potential. If the balance of strength is with the opposition as appears probable, then the jump may inhibit their efforts to get together, and the penalty if four spades meets with a double should not be excessive. In fact, it is our opinion that West should have given strong consideration to bidding five spades when next it was his turn. The damages could not have exceeded 300 points at the very outside.

Against five clubs, West opened his fourth best spade, and South put in the nine from dummy to see what this would fetch from East. The latter's queen was taken by the ace, and a club was led to dummy in order to return the jack of spades. East covered with the king and declarer ruffed. Another club to the ace drew the remaining trump and the king of hearts was led next. East was in with the ace, and he exited with a spade which South ruffed.

The information declarer had so far acquired revealed that East held the king, queen of spades and the ace of hearts. This made it highly unlikely that he could also have the ace of diamonds, for with this card in addition to the others, he would probably have made an informatory double originally, and he would assuredly have doubled the final bid of five clubs to discourage partner from taking a further sacrifice.

On the basis of the evidence, declarer might reasonably have decided to play West for both the ace and queen of diamonds, but instead he chose to play for split honors hoping that East had the queen singly guarded. On this supposition he cashed the remaining high heart to complete the stripping out process and then he returned to his hand with a trump to lead a diamond. West played low and declarer went right up with the king from dummy. A diamond was returned and East was in with the queen. Whether he returned a heart or a spade, South was able to shed his remaining diamond while he ruffed in dummy.

Wife Decides Against Testimony In Assault

The state was forced to dismiss an assault charge against a local man yesterday when his wife exercised her right to refuse to testify.

The man, Frank Thompson, of 410 Cedar Street, was charged Monday by the State's Attorney's Office following an incident early Saturday morning at the South End address. Thompson allegedly held a loaded pistol against his wife's neck in the kitchen of their home.

At the outset of the hearing yesterday, James S. Getty, state's attorney, called the wife (Mrs. Mary Catherine Virginia Thompson) to the stand. Magistrate Paul Barnett instructed the woman of her rights, and she advised the court she did not want to testify.

Getty, in making the motion for dismissal, pointed out that the state would not have a case without the principal witness.

Getty said: "These police officers risked their lives to save yours. Although you have an obligation to your husband, you also have an obligation to these officers and the interest of justice.

"I am going to notify the Cumberland Police Department that in the future the officers do not have a responsibility to answer calls to your home when you yell for 'help.' The excellent job performed by these officers was done in vain."

The case developed early Saturday morning when City Police received a call that a man was holding a gun to his wife's neck on South Cedar Street. Officers Joseph Nelson and Wayne Swauger entered the rear door of the building, and Lt. Thomas See entered the front door. While the officers kept Thompson's attention, Lt. See moved in and disarmed the man.

Meeting Today To Establish Hospital Unit

A supporting chapter of Deborah Hospital, Brown's Mill, N. J., an institution noted for heart surgery, lung cancer operations and operative tuberculosis achievements, possibly will be formed in this area, according to Mrs. Robert M. Seibert, Eckhart, who is spearheading an attempt for chapter formation.

A meeting will be held today at 8 p. m. at Eckhart Elementary School for persons interested in forming an area chapter.

Mrs. Ellen Levine, of Levi Chapter, Baltimore, who is district chairman, will tell of the role played by chapters and show a film entitled "Hello, Daddy," which follows the case of a young patient at the New Jersey hospital.

Mrs. Seibert, mother of 11-year-old Johnny Seibert, whose congenital heart defect — a gaping hole between the lower chambers —was repaired in open chest surgery at Deborah, said that many persons have indicated an interest in forming an area chapter.

The nearest chapters to this section, she said, are two in Baltimore, one of which sponsored her son's operation.

The only source of admission to the hospital, Mrs. Seibert noted, is through a supporting chapter which foots all bills encountered by its "charge."

She said that all persons interested are invited to attend the meeting today. A chapter of Deborah, she added, is non-discriminatory in all aspects.

Chapters are financially supported, Mrs. Seibert continued, through a slight membership fee and fund-raising projects.

There are more than 30,000 chapter members enrolled, with the bulk of membership centered around the Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Jersey and New York regions.

Persons residing in this area in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, will be eligible for chapter benefits if it is formed, and members from the sections will be welcomed, Mrs. Seibert remarked.

She stated that physicians, civic leaders, health organization representatives, have been invited to the organization meeting.

Should a chapter be formed, charter members will be taken on a caravan to Deborah Hospital, witness heart surgery, and take a tour of the institution, Mrs. Seibert concluded.

There are more miles of railroad track underground in the Pennsylvania coal mines than there are on the surface of the state.

The bachelor of arts degree in early childhood education was awarded to Miss Carol Eleanor Eaton, daughter of Mrs. Gladys Miller Eaton of 327 Hammond Street, Westernport.

County Renews Lease

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has renewed the lease on 9.10 acres of land on McKaig's Hill to the federal government. The land contains the Navy Reserve Training Center.

LaVale Man Wants Street Opened

Thomas L. Smith, representing the LaVale Athletic Association, appeared before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to inquire about procedures for having a street opened adjacent to a baseball field which the association plans to open in LaVale.

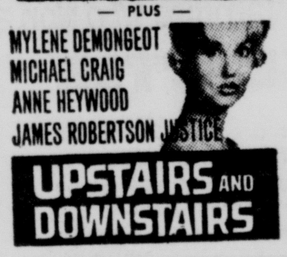

Smith said that someone has dumped some fill dirt in the street, Braddock Street extended, and this prevents access to the field.

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the board, informed Smith of the procedures which must be followed to open or close streets.

$500 Increase Is Sought For State Workers

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Classified Employees Association says it will campaign for a $500 per year salary increase for all of the state's some 22,000 employes.

Such a salary increase would cost Maryland at least $11 million a year.

The executive director of the association, D. Worthington Pearre, outlined a 12-point program that, he said, would be supported by the 12,000 members of the association.

Seek Fringe Issues

In addition to the salary increase, the program included payment of time and a half for overtime; expanded sick leave benefits; differential pay for night work; establishment of a $1.25 minimum wage, and establishment of a hospital and medical insurance program for state employes with state participation.

Pearre said he could not estimate the cost to the state of the entire program.

Pearre promised "an intensive all-out campaign to insure the successful achievement of the goals." He said the campaign started Monday when the association wrote Gov. Tawes, asking for an opportunity to discuss the program with him.

Discussion Set

The next step, Pearre said, will be a county-by-county discussion of the program with members of the General Assembly.

Pearre said the last general pay increase for state employes was in 1956. He said the state now has no state-participating hospital and medical insurance program; pays only straight time for overtime, and does not pay extra for night work.

He said payment of a $1.25 minimum wage would affect primarily janitors and service personnel at state institutions and would cost the state about $300,000 a year.

Illegal Whisky Charge Placed Against Man

A West Virginia timber cutter was arrested Saturday by investigators of the Alcohol and Tobacco Division of the Treasury Department and charged with illegal possession and transportation of illegal whisky.

The man, Paul J. Ziler, 51, of Great Cacapon, was released under $1,000 bond at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner James A. Avirett. Ziler will be given a hearing on the charges, and three other related counts, in Federal District Court, Baltimore.

The investigators, Ernest A. Breakfield Jr. and John L. Burkholder, made the arrest in the Oldtown area after Ziler had crossed over to Maryland from Paw Paw.

The agents said Ziler made no protest after they identified themselves. The "moonshine" was in a charred oak keg in the trunk of his 1958 automobile, and Breakfield and Burkholder said the illegal and untaxed whisky tested out at 108 proof.

Described as "apparently very good stuff," the whisky would have been taxed at about $65, the agents said. As it is, Ziler faces the possibility of prison sentences of from two to five years, and or fines of up to $1,000, if convicted.

Burkholder and Breakfield said they have notified division agents in West Virginia of the arrest, and they added that a search was to be made of Ziler's residence for the illegal still, believed to be located in the basement of the home.

Ziler told the local agents he made his first "moonshine" back in Prohibition days, adding that he had never operated on a large scale. The agents said they were inclined to believe Ziler, since this was his first arrest on a federal charge.

Ziler, a bachelor, works as a timber cutter, the local agents said.

Aging Unit Officers, Directors Approved

The new officers, directors and advisory board of the Allegany County Commission on Problems of the Aging were approved yesterday by the county commissioners.

New officers are Robert Peebles, president; James Smith, vice chairman; Mrs. Nelliemae Redhead, secretary.

Directors, who will serve for three years, are Miss Margaret Morrissey, Mrs. John S. Cook, James Close, Dr. J. E. McLean, Mrs. Jennie J. Graham, Glen Boyd, and Frank T. Powers.

The advisory board members named are Judge W. Earle Cobey and Francis A. Kenney.

Police Report Given

There were 649 arrests and fines collected amounting to $1,794.85 last month, the Police Department reported to the Mayor and Council Monday. The Fire Department responded to 31 calls.

The bidding:

1 ♦	1 ♠	2 ♣	4 ♠
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Deuce of ♠

Declarer was careful to examine all the evidence in today's hand before he made his decision on how to play the diamond suit. His patience was ultimately rewarded by a correct reading of the adverse holdings.

The first round of bidding was reasonable tho perhaps a word is in order concerning West's preëmptive jump to four spades. This action may appear quite drastic at first blush, with only four high card points. However, East's overcall should be based on a good suit, so that the void in clubs plus four trumps offers attractive trick taking potential. If the balance of strength is with the opposition as appears probable, then the jump may inhibit their efforts to get together, and the penalty if four spades meets with a double should not be excessive. In fact, it is our opinion that West should have given strong consideration to bidding five spades when next it was his turn. The damages could not have exceeded 300 points at the very outside.

Against five clubs, West opened his fourth best spade, and South put in the nine from dummy to see what this would fetch from East. The latter's queen was taken by the ace, and a club was led to dummy in order to return the jack of spades. East covered with the king and declarer ruffed. Another club to the ace drew the remaining trump and the king of hearts was led next. East was in with the ace, and he exited with a spade which South ruffed.

The information declarer had so far acquired revealed that East held the king, queen of spades and the ace of hearts. This made it highly unlikely that he could also have the ace of diamonds, for with this card in addition to the others, he would probably have made an informatory double originally, and he would assuredly have doubled the final bid of five clubs to discourage partner from taking a further sacrifice.

On the basis of the evidence, declarer might reasonably have decided to play West for both the ace and queen of diamonds, but instead he chose to play for split honors hoping that East had the queen singly guarded. On this supposition he cashed the remaining high heart to complete the stripping out process and then he returned to his hand with a trump to lead a diamond. West played low and declarer went right up with the king from dummy. A diamond was returned and East was in with the queen. Whether he returned a heart or a spade, South was able to shed his remaining diamond while he ruffed in dummy.

Wife Decides Against Testimony In Assault

The state was forced to dismiss an assault charge against a local man yesterday when his wife exercised her right to refuse to testify.

The man, Frank Thompson, of 410 Cedar Street, was charged Monday by the State's Attorney's Office following an incident early Saturday morning at the South End address. Thompson allegedly held a loaded pistol against his wife's neck in the kitchen of their home.

At the outset of the hearing yesterday, James S. Getty, state's attorney, called the wife (Mrs. Mary Catherine Virginia Thompson) to the stand. Magistrate Paul Barnett instructed the woman of her rights, and she advised the court she did not want to testify.

Getty, in making the motion for dismissal, pointed out that the state would not have a case without the principal witness.

Getty said: "These police officers risked their lives to save yours. Although you have an obligation to your husband, you also have an obligation to these officers and the interest of justice.

"I am going to notify the Cumberland Police Department that in the future the officers do not have a responsibility to answer calls to your home when you yell for 'help.' The excellent job performed by these officers was done in vain."

The case developed early Saturday morning when City Police received a call that a man was holding a gun to his wife's neck on South Cedar Street. Officers Joseph Nelson and Wayne Swauger entered the rear door of the building, and Lt. Thomas See entered the front door. While the officers kept Thompson's attention, Lt. See moved in and disarmed the man.

Meeting Today To Establish Hospital Unit

A supporting chapter of Deborah Hospital, Brown's Mill, N. J., an institution noted for heart surgery, lung cancer operations and operative tuberculosis achievements, possibly will be formed in this area, according to Mrs. Robert M. Seibert, Eckhart, who is spearheading an attempt for chapter formation.

A meeting will be held today at 8 p. m. at Eckhart Elementary School for persons interested in forming an area chapter.

Mrs. Ellen Levine, of Levi Chapter, Baltimore, who is district chairman, will tell of the role played by chapters and show a film entitled "Hello, Daddy," which follows the case of a young patient at the New Jersey hospital.

Mrs. Seibert, mother of 11-year-old Johnny Seibert, whose congenital heart defect — a gaping hole between the lower chambers —was repaired in open chest surgery at Deborah, said that many persons have indicated an interest in forming an area chapter.

The nearest chapters to this section, she said, are two in Baltimore, one of which sponsored her son's operation.

The only source of admission to the hospital, Mrs. Seibert noted, is through a supporting chapter which foots all bills encountered by its "charge."

She said that all persons interested are invited to attend the meeting today. A chapter of Deborah, she added, is non-discriminatory in all aspects.

Chapters are financially supported, Mrs. Seibert continued, through a slight membership fee and fund-raising projects.

There are more than 30,000 chapter members enrolled, with the bulk of membership centered around the Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Jersey and New York regions.

Persons residing in this area in Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, will be eligible for chapter benefits if it is formed, and members from the sections will be welcomed, Mrs. Seibert remarked.

She stated that physicians, civic leaders, health organization representatives, have been invited to the organization meeting.

Should a chapter be formed, charter members will be taken on a caravan to Deborah Hospital, witness heart surgery, and take a tour of the institution, Mrs. Seibert concluded.

Military Switch From Coal Could Hurt West Va.

Governor Barron Expresses Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. W. W. Barron of West Virginia said Monday that with crucial unemployment existing in his state, the conversion of military installations from coal to other fuels is a matter of serious concern.

Any additional loss of coal markets would be a blow to West Virginia's economy and that of other coal-producing states, he said.

West Virginia's coal production since 1947 has dropped from 176 million tons to about 120 million annually and "we cannot afford further setbacks," Barron said.

He expressed his view at a conference of coal and rail industry representatives with Defense Department officials. It was called by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to urge the department to use coal wherever feasible.

The governor said sources of other fuel may not be sufficiently available in the nation in times of war.

Present defense department fuels procurement policies based on terms of a dollars-and-cents contract are unrealistic, he said. The difference of a few pennies, he added, can mean the difference between a man getting a paycheck instead of unemployment compensation.

Edward J. Sheridan, assistant secretary of defense, said the Defense Department, with utility bills of $600 million a year of which $260 million is for heating, must economize where possible.

The department policy on fuel selection, he said, is that the fuels used shall be the most economical. The department's interest, he explained, is not so much in the lowest cost fuel as the fuel that will produce the lowest cost heat.

Military Switch From Coal Could Hurt West Va.

Governor Barron Expresses Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. W. W. Barron of West Virginia said Monday that with crucial unemployment existing in his state, the conversion of military installations from coal to other fuels is a matter of serious concern.

Any additional loss of coal markets would be a blow to West Virginia's economy and that of other coal-producing states, he said.

West Virginia's coal production since 1947 has dropped from 176 million tons to about 120 million annually and "we cannot afford further setbacks," Barron said.

He expressed his view at a conference of coal and rail industry representatives with Defense Department officials. It was called by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to urge the department to use coal wherever feasible.

The governor said sources of other fuel may not be sufficiently available in the nation in times of war.

Present defense department fuels procurement policies based on terms of a dollars-and-cents contract are unrealistic, he said. The difference of a few pennies, he added, can mean the difference between a man getting a paycheck instead of unemployment compensation.

Edward J. Sheridan, assistant secretary of defense, said the Defense Department, with utility bills of $600 million a year of which $260 million is for heating, must economize where possible.

The department policy on fuel selection, he said, is that the fuels used shall be the most economical. The department's interest, he explained, is not so much in the lowest cost fuel as the fuel that will produce the lowest cost heat.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

"My Husband Likes Me Just The Way I Am!"

So, your husband wouldn't have you "change a hair" for him, eh? Are you sure, or are you, perhaps, being just a little smug — and somewhat short-sighted — about that same "sweet old self" he admires so unwaveringly.

Edwina H., married and the mother of teen-age daughters, still wears her hair in the shoulder length cascade so popular when she was graduated from high school in 1940. She's weary of the monotony of the "side part," the flat top relieved only by a single little-girl barrette.

She has good coarse quality hair that hangs gracefully. But it's beginning to be streaked with grey. From afar, the coiffure still becomes her because she is short and petite. But, close up, it's obvious that the face under the little girl's hairdo is not a little girl's face anymore.

"My husband won't have my hair any other way!" is Edwina's explanation. "He says I still look the way I did the day we were married."

Patricia M. should lose 50 pounds, perhaps more. She was only 10 pounds overweight when she married a dozen years ago (what her husband called "pleasingly plump"). That's what he still calls her, professing great disdain for the bags-of-bones pictured in fashion ads. So, Patricia, who has no more taste for dieting than any other woman, feels no special incentive to lose weight.

"As long as my husband prefers women with a little meat on their bones, why should I worry and starve myself?"

Marian P., pale and plain, attracts about as much attention as a shadow at high noon. On purpose. Her husband is a fanatic about conservative dress. His idea of the "understated look" barely ranks as a whisper. She's never dared to don anything louder than navy blue. Everything she owns is simon-pure basic. No fads, no glitter, no high-fashion flings for her!

"You don't want everybody looking at you," is the way he puts it.

Fortunately, husbands like these are rare. Most men are more inclined to pay attention to the bills than to what the bills are for.

If the Edwina, Patricias and Marians aren't free, it may be partly their own fault. They may be using their husbands' possessive interest, that overgenerous loyalty, as an alibi. They may not want to be free to make changes out of fear of making mistakes.

I have a hunch their husbands would be delighted with a few revolutionary improvements. What about it?

•Southeast Asia Is Not A Korea

Admiral Harry D. Felt, who commands U. S. forces in the Pacific and Far East, doesn't expect Laos, Thailand or Viet Nam to become another Korea.

Figuring largely in the admiral's reasoning is the absence of any nearby arsenal which could support a massive Red Chinese invasion the way Manchuria did in the Korean War. He also points to the contrast in terrain, stressing the inhospitable nature of jungle and swamp that become mired during Southeast Asia's monsoons.

Whether out of modesty or for reasons best known to himself, Admiral Felt omits mention of perhaps the greatest deterrent to Communist China's ambition—the land, sea and air forces deployed under his command from San Francisco to Japan and beyond.

The United States was caught woefully unprepared by the outbreak in Korea. Military cutbacks had left garrisons undermanned throughout the Far East. The firepower now assembled in the area is described by the Pentagon as "overwhelming," and is calculated to discourage another gamble by Red China on a cheap, quick victory. Its success is proof of the force military preparedness exerts on the Communist mind. The prospect in Southeast Asia, consequently, is for protracted guerrilla clashes rather than a single, decisive campaign—another Malaya and not a Dien Bien Phu. However unpleasant this long-term involvement may be, it is far preferable to another Korea.

A Most Delightful Letter

Thelma B. Wright, whose address is not on her letter, writes me:

"In your column in the Herald Examiner, May 9th regarding the King Anderson bill, I wish to say, that it is a pity, that one of your four major illnesses, did not prove fatal. As far as I can see you would be no loss to the community.

"You have the collossal nerve, to say that people who cannot afford medical care etc., are in that predicament, due to 'shiftlessness' and profligacy.

"All I can say Sir, is 'drop dead.' "

This letter, which is the acme of human kindness, is a very intelligent addition to a serious discussion of an important current political problem. But it is indicative of the enormous change that has taken place in our society — the bitterness over the Welfare State and the assumption that Horatio Alger was all wrong—that thrift is a wicked practice; that spending up to the last penny is sound. Of course, when so large a share of everyone's earnings go to taxes, federal, state and local, it is difficult to save.

Nevertheless, this nation was built by thrift. It was built by the expenditure of private funds, patiently saved and invested, not for hasty profits but for permanent growth. Most of the large companies started as small ones and grew by putting earnings back into growth and by selling participation to those who had saved their money.

Let us have a look at this situation from the standpoint of the stock market panic. The small man, who bought a hundred or so shares on margin and who has probably been wiped out, calculated for some time that he was the owner of, let us say, $1,500 which is now gone.

The economists may say that such a man did not lose that $1,500 because he never had it. They say that he imagined that he had that money because he read in the newspapers or on the ticker that his particular stock was worth that amount of money, less taxes, if sold on a certain day.

However, this man did believe that he had $1,500 and he lived accordingly. He bought a car on time; he bought a refrigerator on time; he bought his wife a fur coat on time. He felt fine. He figured that as he got some more money he would buy more things on time. That $1,500 multiplied itself many times, perhaps 10 or 15 times—and all on time.

Now, he has lost that $1,500, imaginary or otherwise, and he will have to meet his obligations out of his salary. For a year or two, he will be cautious. He is not going to take a tour on his vacation but will stay at home and cut the grass. Go up the line to the man who lost $15,000 or $20,000 and the situation is even worse. That man is frightened and he is looking for a scapegoat, just as during the 1929 panic, he looked for a scapegoat.

He will not, of course, blame himself. That is too much to ask of any man. He will not say that his judgement was bad: that he got into a game which he did not understand; that he was a gambler and speculator and was caught short by the debacle. He must say to himself that he is an acme of wisdom and that someone plotted his defeat. He wants the government to do something about it.

Unless stocks are bought for investment, there must be an element of gamble in them. It is absurd to believe that a free enterprise system can exist without loss. Where there is a profit, there must be the possibility of a loss. Only in the Welfare State is it possible to guarantee persons against loss, but such a guarantee must lead to state control of business. If the state guarantees a business against loss, it must eventually take over the business.

The trouble with the thinking of Thelma B. Wright and many others is that they demand government guarantees for themselves from the cradle to the grave but reject the consequences of their demands. The ultimate consequence could be a socialist state.

It must be anticipated that the trend is toward a Welfare State in this country and that the opposition to it is trifling.

'What's The Matter With Him?'

Kennedy Shouldn't Have Canceled His Papers

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What kind of "image" do the people have of a President of the United States? Do they think of him as an ordinary mortal who reveals his annoyances and exuberances the same way that the average man does in everyday life? Do they think of him as a man of dignity, calmness, and fairness — a man not given to bad temper or irascible outbursts, but the kind who, while at times inwardly pained, nevertheless exhibits outwardly the tolerance which a leader of the people is expected always to maintain?

These questions come to mind when one reads that President Kennedy the other day ordered 22 subscriptions to The New York Herald Tribune canceled, thus notifying his entire staff not to read one of the principal newspapers of the country that presents the "other side" as well as the administration's side.

One of the aides of Mr. Kennedy is reported to have argued that, like anyone else, the President has the constitutional right to read what he pleases. This is reminiscent of a cartoon some years ago in The New Yorker portraying an injured motorist being carried away, and the single caption read: "He had the right of way."

A President can continue to pick and choose what he reads but, if he shuts himself off from criticism, he runs the risk that in this era of polemical politics he will not understand just why public opinion is being turned against him. If he is interested in re-election—and what President isn't?—the man in the White House will want to watch closely the currents of public opinion day by day so he can the more effectively put his own case before the voters, correcting errors and at the same time countering criticism with new proposals or policies.

It is easy enough to say that there are plenty of other newspapers critical of the administration which Mr. Kennedy could ready to take the place of the one he canceled. But this is not really a persuasive answer to the criticism which now will spread throughout the country. What will the people think of a President who gives the impression that he cannot tolerate reading the views of those who disagree with him? Is this the kind of image that any man in the White House would really want people to have of their President?

For the people do idealize the office of President. They think of it not merely as a trusteeship in their interest. They have an almost monarchial worship of the highest office in the land. They feel a throb of patriotism when the band plays "Hail to The Chief," and the chairman of a meeting says, "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States." For he is the people's President — their leader, their choice as a ruler for four years.

Any person can become angry, but a President isn't supposed to do so in public. He's supposed to have the patience of Job and to have the courage to rise above petty annoyances. For somehow he doesn't represent just himself, or his family, or even his party. He represents the United States of America before the world.

The American people "liked Ike" because he didn't play politics, even though realistically this was a bit of a handicap to him. The public doesn't think of the Presidency as a place for a political machine or a Tammany-like boss, even as they see how a political apparatus for vote-getting can be built up by using Presidential powers and public funds to that end.

President Eisenhower used to avoid reading a local newspaper, The Washington Post, but neither he nor his staff made a point of it or let it become a national episode.

It isn't always easy for a newspaper or a critic to ignore a President's manifestation or displeasure. The New York Herald Tribune, in a front-page editorial, endeavored to give "the soft answer that turneth away wrath," in the hope that the President would forget his unhappy reaction to certain articles reporting on controversies in the news and on which Mr. Kennedy happens to be politically sensitive.

It is very important for every President to realize that in free America the newspapers do not tell their editors or writers that they must present the news or handle their editions in ways that will please the top man in the government or his staff.

The primary responsibility of a newspaper, moreover, is to its constituency of readers. The people want the story told without regard to whether it politically helps or hurts the administration in power.

It is a mistake for any President to ignore criticism or to brush it aside as mere partisanship or political antagonism. The "other side" may not be palatable. It may be aggravating. But it is important for a President to read it. Henry L. Mencken, the brilliant editor and satirist, used to answer biting letters from critics with this single sentence: "You may be right." indeed, on many points the "other fellow" might be wrong, but on certain points there is always a chance that he may be right.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BACKFIRING HUMOR — Some months ago, Rep. Arnold Olsen, of Montana, advised his constituents about how to get results when writing their congressmen. He urged them to write on only one side of the paper and to confine their remarks to one subject.

This, he explained, would make it easier and more effective for the congressmen to get action in the various executive departments and agencies.

But as an afterthought, he felt his advice might have the effect of discouraging correspondence so he added that they should keep on writing — even if they had to write on the back of old tomato can labels.

Ever since then he has been receiving a sizeable amount of his constituency mail — you guessed it — written on the backs of old tomato labels.

His staff has gotten pretty expert on judging the kind of letters being received. If it is a request for help, or a note of approval, it comes as usual. But if it's a complaint, criticism or angry rejoinder, it comes on the backs of those labels.

Olsen doesn't know whether or not to be happy about the situation. Congressmen usually like to receive letters from their voters. It shows they're aware that he exists — a prerequisite to re-election.

Doctor Says Pinworms Mimic Many Diseases

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The pinworm is making news again because a Connecticut physician says the parasite can mimic numerous diseases. Dr. Leo Litter thus reopens a controversial subject of many years' duration. His conclusions are based on a study of 2,000 cases over a 10 year period.

Dr. Litter believes pinworms may affect any organ of the body, including the kidneys, bladder, brain, stomach, intestines, pelvic organs, eyes, and skin. A variety of pediatric ailments that had failed to respond to standard treatments were traced to this infestation.

Some of these youngsters had manifestations suggesting brain tumor, epilepsy, St. Vitus' dance, and other neurological disorders. Eliminating the parasites often was followed by relief of symptoms.

In others, pinworms created abnormal behavior, apprehension, or irritability. Itchiness, headache, and a variety of eye symptoms were noted in some whereas others had circles under the eyes, skin rashes in the groin, or rectal bleeding.

Asthma and a peculiar brassy staccato cough were traced to post-nasal drip and the wandering of the worms into the respiratory passageways. Poor or perverted appetite was common. Dr. Litter reports that colic developed in 68 per cent of infants born in families harboring the parasites.

Pinworm infestation is extremely prevalent; it has been estimated that 31 per cent of all children harbor these parasites. It has been a moot question whether they produce symptoms other than itching in the pelvic area or reflex nervous disorders, especially in weakly children. These worms have been found in the appendix and in the female reproductive organs.

Dr. Litter has stirred up a hornet's nest. He will have trouble convincing those who believe the pinworm can be found in the majority of sickly or weak youngsters, and probably is an innocent bystander.

YELLOWNESS AND ITCHINESS

R. W. writes: What are the symptoms of jaundice?

REPLY

The only symptoms are itching and a yellowish discoloration of the skin and the whites of the eyes due to the presence of bile pigments in the skin. Manifestations of the many diseases that cause jaundice vary from severe abdominal pain to nothing at all.

WORMS IN MUSCLES

M. H. writes: Is there a cure for trichinosis, the pork worm that gets into the muscles of a human being?

REPLY

Prevention is better because it is too late for cure after the parasites get into the muscles. In time, symptoms subside and the majority of victims are not bothered thereafter.

STUBBORN WART

M. K. writes: My sister had a plantar wart removed surgically a few years ago. A couple of X-ray treatments were given later. Now the wart has returned. Is there any way it can be removed permanently?

REPLY

The wart and the surrounding tissue can be removed surgically and the area replaced with a skin graft. Some surgeons also remove the metatarsal bones beneath the wart or callus. I assume the physician has tried special shoes and pads.

GAGGING FROM ODOR

M. B. writes: I use liniments for my aches and pains. But their strong smell gags me. Your comments would be appreciated.

REPLY

I assume the offender is methyl salicylate (oil of wintergreen) which is used in many liniments. If the odor of this chemical bothers you, switch to rubbing alcohol and take aspirin for relief of pain.

BLOOD COUNT AND CANCER

J. L. writes: Do people with a normal blood count stand less chance of developing cancer than do those with a low blood count?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but anemia is definitely not to blame. Cancer victims may develop anemia but in these cases the malignancy is responsible for the low blood count.

TOMORROW: In a coma.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

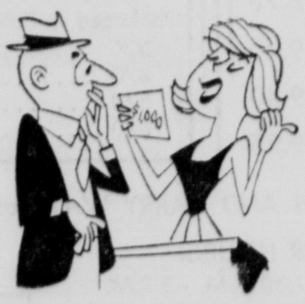

Try And Stop Me

A New Yorker purchased a shirt at a famous Dallas specialty shop, then was embarrassed to discover he had only a $1,000 bill in his wallet. Expecting a roar of protest, he timidly handed the bill to the cashier. She glanced at it languidly, then handed it back. "You'll have to take this," she announced without looking up, "to the petty cash desk in the rear of the store."

A sadder but wiser newspaper man in Buffalo is looking for a new job. He lost his old one when the chief auditor spotted this item on a big expense account tab he tried to get away with: "Dinner with the sports editor of the Congressional Record: $46."

Mike Connolly nominated for the year's biggest example of unmitigated gall the convict, up for life for bumping off his two parents, who went on a hunger strike because, he alleged the food wasn't as good as his mother used to make.

History Will Parade Past President In Ceremonies At West Point Today

By Tom McNamara

EDITOR'S NOTE — Drew Pearson's column today is written by his associate, Tom McNamara, whose son graduates today from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

WEST POINT, N. Y. — One hundred and fifty years of history will pass in review before President John F. Kennedy today as he addresses the graduates of the U.S. Military Academy. During that period, in war and peace, West Point has played a dynamic role in the life of the nation.

The lore and legend of America abound, as in few places, in this scenic nook of the Hudson River, mantled by the Catskills. Across the river is Tarrytown, N. Y., where Ichabod Crane and his rustic contemporaries held forth in Washington Irving's immortal tales of "Sleepy Hollow."

The area also had a knowledge of musketry and foreign intrigue long before Sylvanus Thayer established the Military Academy in 1802. British and French colonial troops skirmished up and down the Hudson River. Their Indian allies fought on both sides.

Later, during the Revolutionary War, West Point was an American stronghold. Gen. George Washington had headquarters here in 1779 and in the following year the fort was involved in the greatest infamy of our history when its then commanding officer, Benedict Arnold, attempted to betray it to the British.

Arnold's treasonable meeting with the British agent, Maj. John Andre, in the nearby hills of Stony Point was foiled, however, by the capture of Andre and by surprise attacks on British forces. The assaults were led by the George Patton of his time, the dashing and brilliant General "Mad Anthony" Wayne.

Following the revolution, the Military Academy thus came into being on a site that had been battle-tested in both the glory and the perfidy of warfare.

A Cadet's Memories

Many wars have followed to preserve the freedoms achieved by the revolution. The fact that we have never lost is due largely to the valiant leadership of men trained at West Point.

This tradition will run through the minds of the graduates of 1962 many times today. . . when they eat their last meal in Washington Hall, the mess center named for our first President. . . . when they march for the last time in the Long Gray Line to hear a commencement talk by the 35th President.

The graduates also will have many personal memories on this final pilgrimage, especially when they march past the famous battle monument. It was here they took the cadet oath to "duty, honor, country" four years ago.

They numbered 850 then. Today 598 will graduate. They come from all parts of America — the plains, the mountains, the cotton and mining areas, the grainlands, the tenements of our teeming cities. Each will be commissioned a second lieutenant and receive a bachelor of science degree.

They are not ordinary young men, otherwise they could not have survived four rugged years of discipline at the Military Academy. You grow up very fast there in a lot of ways — or you don't stay.

There are compensating rewards, however. If a cadet can make the grade, he is fortified with some of the pioneer grit of the past that made our country great. The old and the new are never very far apart at West Point. The values of both weigh in the shaping of a cadet.

A Cadet's Work

He also receives an excellent course of higher education. The Academy ranks fourth among the nation's universities in Rhodes Scholarship awards. But there is yet another facet to a Cadet's life, the most important of all.

He is thoroughly trained in military science and aptitude, with one thing primarily in mind — supremacy for his country in wartime. The ultimate mission of every cadet is leadership in combat — with God's help, victorious combat.

When he isn't hitting the books, every spare moment of a cadet's time is devoted to other things—inspections, parades, gymnasium workouts, etc. — from 6 a. m. reveille until lights-out. Every cadet must engage in some form of athletics, varsity or intramural.

Despite these nonacademic demands, scholastic failures at West Point are well below the national norm. The Corps has an average attrition of 30 per cent each four years, of which 12 per cent is caused by scholastic dismissals, 12 per cent by voluntary resignations, and 6 per cent for miscellaneous causes.

The latter includes departures for physical deficiency, as well as adverse ratings in military aptitude. Relatively few cadets — only 1.4 per cent — are expelled for violating West Point's rigid honor code against unruthfulness, cheating, or stealing.

It isn't the kind of life that would interest someone seeking an easy way to a college degree. It was never meant to be. However, the 598 young men who in 1958 took the cadet oath to "duty, honor, country," and who will graduate today, wouldn't change places with anyone in the world.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Some things are impossible for me to believe, even in the face of evidence. Parapsychology is one. This includes mental telepathy, clairvoyance, spiritualism and extrasensory perception of all kinds. Studies in these matters have been in progress at Duke University for many years, but I am not impressed with the findings.

Twenty-four years ago, 352 members of the American Psychological Association were asked about extrasensory perception. These people should know, and their answers were as follows: 2% said that extrasensory perception is an established fact; 7% said it is a likely possibility; 36% condemned it as a remote possibility; 15% declared it an impossibility; and 40% called it "an unknown."

I agree. And yet I know of three events, rare and mystifying, which are beyond any rationale. One concerns a man in Virginia Beach named Cayce who, as I understand it, had certain powers beyond comprehension. One time when a woman was dying, a physician said that she might be saved if he could find a certain obsolete medical compound.

No one could find it. Cayce was consulted. He told the searchers to go to New Orleans and locate a certain drugstore. There they would find the medicine. They didn't. They phoned to say that the store had no such compound in stock. Mr. Cayce told them to look on the second shelf behind the prescription counter, on the left side. They did. The medicine was there.

Cayce had never been to New Orleans. Two other incidents concern my father and I am acquainted with both. In the month of January, 1943, he saw a small round spotlight on the wall over his bed. There was no light in the room. My mother told him that he was seeing things. He got on a chair. The light was there all right, but there was no source.

My mother, who didn't know what the word occult meant and who would be suspicious of it on sound alone, got out of bed and saw the light. It appeared every night after that. My father pulled the drapes hard to cover the windows, and even hung his hat over the keyhole. The little light almost drove him crazy.

Then on Jan. 23rd, it disappeared. "Something's going to happen," dad said. "Something bad." My mother didn't answer. They went to bed. At 2 a.m. the phone rang. It was my father's sister Margaret. "I don't like to wake you up, Johnny," she said, "but momma just passed away."

On August 2nd, 1957, my mother had a heart attack and was taken to Monmouth Memorial Center. We remained in the room with her until she felt comfortable. Then we went home. It was Sunday night and we watched television. Dad said he fel' like reading, so he took a book into the kitchen and closed the door.

He read for awhile. At 10:30 p.m. there was a commercial for a deodorant preceding a television show called What's My Line? The commercial was on when my father came in from the kitchen. "Did you hear anything? he said. I shrugged. "About what?" I said. He shook his head slowly. "I could have sworn I heard your mother calling," he said.

"You're worried about her." I said. "You're imagining things." He smiled a tiny bit. "I guess you're right," he said. "I was reading in the kitchen and I heard her call: 'John! John!'" He sat to watch the t.v. show.

In 10 minutes, the phone rang. It was Dr. Joel Feldman. "Better come down to the hospital," he said to me. "I don't think your mother is going to make it." I drew my father away from the group. "Brace yourself," I said. He looked like a fighter pretending he's not hurt. "Mom?" he said. I nodded. He got a jacket.

We drove down the beach through the cool of the night. The faces of two men looked saffron in the light from the dashboard. I felt that my mother was already gone and I didn't want the shock to hit him hard. "It's better this way," I said. "She's been sick a long time; she's blind; she's 73; the fun is all behind her. She's in a state of grace. It's better this way."

He thought about it. Then he nodded the gray head. "You're right," he said softly. "I guess you're right." We parked at the emergency entrance and went up the elevator to the sixth floor. We hurried to the room where we had left her, two hours earlier.

Dr. Feldman and a nurse stood by the bed. We pushed through. She had gone, but we kissed her in a meaningless farewell. If we could only have told her, just once, how much she had always meant to us. Just once.

The nurse was talking to the doctor. "I was working in the next room," she said. "It was about ten-thirty. Suddenly, I heard someone calling 'John! John!,' but she was gone by the time I got here."

'What's The Matter With Him?'

Southeast Asia Is Not A Korea

Admiral Harry D. Felt, who commands U. S. forces in the Pacific and Far East, doesn't expect Laos, Thailand or Viet Nam to become another Korea.

Figuring largely in the admiral's reasoning is the absence of any nearby arsenal which could support a massive Red Chinese invasion the way Manchuria did in the Korean War. He also points to the contrast in terrain, stressing the inhospitable nature of jungle and swamp that become mired during Southeast Asia's monsoons.

Whether out of modesty or for reasons best known to himself, Admiral Felt omits mention of perhaps the greatest deterrent to Communist China's ambition—the land, sea and air forces deployed under his command from San Francisco to Japan and beyond.

The United States was caught woefully unprepared by the outbreak in Korea. Military cutbacks had left garrisons undermanned throughout the Far East. The firepower now assembled in the area is described by the Pentagon as "overwhelming," and is calculated to discourage another gamble by Red China on a cheap, quick victory. Its success is proof of the force military preparedness exerts on the Communist mind. The prospect in Southeast Asia, consequently, is for protracted guerrilla clashes rather than a single, decisive campaign—another Malaya and not a Dien Bien Phu. However unpleasant this long-term involvement may be, it is far preferable to another Korea.

Kennedy Shouldn't Have Canceled His Papers

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What kind of "image" do the people have of a President of the United States? Do they think of him as an ordinary mortal who reveals his annoyances and exuberances the same way that the average man does in everyday life? Do they think of him as a man of dignity, calmness, and fairness — a man not given to bad temper or irascible outbursts, but the kind who, while at times inwardly pained, nevertheless exhibits outwardly the tolerance which a leader of the people is expected always to maintain?

These questions come to mind when one reads that President Kennedy the other day ordered 22 subscriptions to The New York Herald Tribune canceled, thus notifying his entire staff not to read one of the principal newspapers of the country that presents the "other side" as well as the administration's side.

One of the aides of Mr. Kennedy is reported to have argued that, like anyone else, the President has the constitutional right to read what he pleases. It is easy enough to say that there are plenty of other newspapers critical of the administration which Mr. Kennedy could ready to take the place of the one he canceled. But this is not really a persuasive answer to the criticism which now will spread throughout the country. What will the people think of a President who gives the impression that he cannot tolerate reading the views of those who disagree with him? Is this the kind of image that any man in the White House would really want people to have of their President?

For the people do idealize the office of President. They think of it not merely as a trusteeship in their interest. They have an almost monarchial worship of the highest office in the land. They feel a throb of patriotism when the band plays "Hail to The Chief," and the chairman of a meeting says, "Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States." For he is the people's President — their leader, their choice as a ruler for four years.

Any person can become angry, but a President isn't supposed to do so in public. He's supposed to have the patience of Job and to have the courage to rise above petty annoyances. For somehow he doesn't represent just himself, or his family, or even his party. He represents the United States of America before the world.

The American people "liked Ike" because he didn't play politics, even though realistically this was a bit of a handicap to him. The public doesn't think of the Presidency as a place for a political machine or a Tammany-like boss, even as they see how a political apparatus for vote-getting can be built up by using Presidential powers and public funds to that end.

President Eisenhower used to avoid reading a local newspaper, The Washington Post, but neither he nor his staff made a point of it or let it become a national episode.

It isn't always easy for a newspaper or a critic to ignore a President's manifestation or displeasure. The New York Herald Tribune, in a front-page editorial, endeavored to give "the soft answer that turneth away wrath," in the hope that the President would forget his unhappy reaction to certain articles reporting on controversies in the news and on which Mr. Kennedy happens to be politically sensitive.

It is very important for every President to realize that in free America the newspapers do not tell their editors or writers that they must present the news or handle their editions in ways that will please the top man in the government or his staff.

The primary responsibility of a newspaper, moreover, is to its constituency of readers. The people want the story told without regard to whether it politically helps or hurts the administration in power.

It is a mistake for any President to ignore criticism or to brush it aside as mere partisanship or political antagonism. The "other side" may not be palatable. It may be aggravating. But it is important for a President to read it. Henry L. Mencken, the brilliant editor and satirist, used to answer biting letters from critics with this single sentence: "You may be right." indeed, on many points the "other fellow" might be wrong, but on certain points there is always a chance that he may be right.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BACKFIRING HUMOR — Some months ago, Rep. Arnold Olsen, of Montana, advised his constituents about how to get results when writing their congressmen. He urged them to write on only one side of the paper and to confine their remarks to one subject.

This, he explained, would make it easier and more effective for the congressmen to get action in the various executive departments and agencies.

But as an afterthought, he felt his advice might have the effect of discouraging correspondence so he added that they should keep on writing — even if they had to write on the back of old tomato can labels.

Ever since then he has been receiving a sizeable amount of his constituency mail — you guessed it — written on the backs of old tomato labels.

His staff has gotten pretty expert on judging the kind of letters being received. If it is a request for help, or a note of approval, it comes as usual. But if it's a complaint, criticism or angry rejoinder, it comes on the backs of those labels.

Olsen doesn't know whether or not to be happy about the situation. Congressmen usually like to receive letters from their voters. It shows they're aware that he exists — a prerequisite to re-election.

Doctor Says Pinworms Mimic Many Diseases

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The pinworm is making news again because a Connecticut physician says the parasite can mimic numerous diseases. Dr. Leo Litter thus reopens a controversial subject of many years' duration. His conclusions are based on a study of 2,000 cases over a 10 year period.

Dr. Litter believes pinworms may affect any organ of the body, including the kidneys, bladder, brain, stomach, intestines, pelvic organs, eyes, and skin. A variety of pediatric ailments that had failed to respond to standard treatments were traced to this infestation.

Some of these youngsters had manifestations suggesting brain tumor, epilepsy, St. Vitus' dance, and other neurological disorders. Eliminating the parasites often was followed by relief of symptoms.

In others, pinworms created abnormal behavior, apprehension, or irritability. Itchiness, headache, and a variety of eye symptoms were noted in some whereas others had circles under the eyes, skin rashes in the groin, or rectal bleeding.

Asthma and a peculiar brassy staccato cough were traced to post-nasal drip and the wandering of the worms into the respiratory passageways. Poor or perverted appetite was common. Dr. Litter reports that colic developed in 68 per cent of infants born in families harboring the parasites.

Pinworm infestation is extremely prevalent; it has been estimated that 31 per cent of all children harbor these parasites. It has been a moot question whether they produce symptoms other than itching in the pelvic area or reflex nervous disorders, especially in weakly children. These worms have been found in the appendix and in the female reproductive organs.

Dr. Litter has stirred up a hornet's nest. He will have trouble convincing those who believe the pinworm can be found in the majority of sickly or weak youngsters, and probably is an innocent bystander.

YELLOWNESS AND ITCHINESS

R. W. writes: What are the symptoms of jaundice?

REPLY

The only symptoms are itching and a yellowish discoloration of the skin and the whites of the eyes due to the presence of bile pigments in the skin. Manifestations of the many diseases that cause jaundice vary from severe abdominal pain to nothing at all.

WORMS IN MUSCLES

M. H. writes: Is there a cure for trichinosis, the pork worm that gets into the muscles of a human being?

REPLY

Prevention is better because it is too late for cure after the parasites get into the muscles. In time, symptoms subside and the majority of victims are not bothered thereafter.

STUBBORN WART

M. K. writes: My sister had a plantar wart removed surgically a few years ago. A couple of X-ray treatments were given later. Now the wart has returned. Is there any way it can be removed permanently?

REPLY

The wart and the surrounding tissue can be removed surgically and the area replaced with a skin graft. Some surgeons also remove the metatarsal bones beneath the wart or callus. I assume the physician has tried special shoes and pads.

GAGGING FROM ODOR

M. B. writes: I use liniments for my aches and pains. But their strong smell gags me. Your comments would be appreciated.

REPLY

I assume the offender is methyl salicylate (oil of wintergreen) which is used in many liniments. If the odor of this chemical bothers you, switch to rubbing alcohol and take aspirin for relief of pain.

BLOOD COUNT AND CANCER

J. L. writes: Do people with a normal blood count stand less chance of developing cancer than do those with a low blood count?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but anemia is definitely not to blame. Cancer victims may develop anemia but in these cases the malignancy is responsible for the low blood count.

TOMORROW: In a coma.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

A New Yorker purchased a shirt at a famous Dallas specialty shop, then was embarrassed to discover he had only a $1,000 bill in his wallet. Expecting a roar of protest, he timidly handed the bill to the cashier. She glanced at it languidly, then handed it back. "You'll have to take this," she announced without looking up, "to the petty cash desk in the rear of the store."

A sadder but wiser newspaper man in Buffalo is looking for a new job. He lost his old one when the chief auditor spotted this item on a big expense account tab he tried to get away with: "Dinner with the sports editor of the Congressional Record: $46."

History Will Parade Past President In Ceremonies At West Point Today

By Tom McNamara

EDITOR'S NOTE — Drew Pearson's column today is written by his associate, Tom McNamara, whose son graduates today from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

WEST POINT, N. Y. — One hundred and fifty years of history will pass in review before President John F. Kennedy today as he addresses the graduates of the U.S. Military Academy. During that period, in war and peace, West Point has played a dynamic role in the life of the nation.

The lore and legend of America abound, as in few places, in this scenic nook of the Hudson River, mantled by the Catskills. Across the river is Tarrytown, N. Y., where Ichabod Crane and his rustic contemporaries held forth in Washington Irving's immortal tales of "Sleepy Hollow."

The area also had a knowledge of musketry and foreign intrigue long before Sylvanus Thayer established the Military Academy in 1802. British and French colonial troops skirmished up and down the Hudson River. Their Indian allies fought on both sides.

Later, during the Revolutionary War, West Point was an American stronghold. Gen. George Washington had headquarters here in 1779 and in the following year the fort was involved in the greatest infamy of our history when its then commanding officer, Benedict Arnold, attempted to betray it to the British.

Arnold's treasonable meeting with the British agent, Maj. John Andre, in the nearby hills of Stony Point was foiled, however, by the capture of Andre and by surprise attacks on British forces. The assaults were led by the George Patton of his time, the dashing and brilliant General "Mad Anthony" Wayne.

Following the revolution, the Military Academy thus came into being on a site that had been battle-tested in both the glory and the perfidy of warfare.

A Cadet's Memories

Many wars have followed to preserve the freedoms achieved by the revolution. The fact that we have never lost is due largely to the valiant leadership of men trained at West Point.

This tradition will run through the minds of the graduates of 1962 many times today. . . .when they eat their last meal in Washington Hall, the mess center named for our first President. . . . . when they march for the last time in the Long Gray Line to hear a commencement talk by the 35th President.

The graduates also will have many personal memories on this final pilgrimage, especially when they march past the famous battle monument. It was here they took the cadet oath to "duty, honor, country" four years ago.

They numbered 850 then. Today 598 will graduate. They come from all parts of America — the plains, the mountains, the cotton and mining areas, the grainlands, the tenements of our teeming cities. Each will be commissioned a second lieutenant and receive a bachelor of science degree.

They are not ordinary young men, otherwise they could not have survived four rugged years of discipline at the Military Academy. You grow up very fast there in a lot of ways — or you don't stay.

There are compensating rewards, however. If a cadet can make the grade, he is fortified with some of the pioneer grit of the past that made our country great. The old and the new are never very far apart at West Point. The values of both weigh in the shaping of a cadet.

A Cadet's Work

He also receives an excellent course of higher education. The Academy ranks fourth among the nation's universities in Rhodes Scholarship awards. But there is yet another facet to a Cadet's life, the most important of all.

He is thoroughly trained in military science and aptitude, with one thing primarily in mind — supremacy for his country in wartime. The ultimate mission of every cadet is leadership in combat — with God's help, victorious combat.

When he isn't hitting the books, every spare moment of a cadet's time is devoted to other things—inspections, parades, gymnasium workouts, etc. — from 6 a. m. reveille until lights-out. Every cadet must engage in some form of athletics, varsity or intramural.

Despite these nonacademic demands, scholastic failures at West Point are well below the national norm. The Corps has an average attrition of 30 per cent each four years, of which 12 per cent is caused by scholastic dismissals, 12 per cent by voluntary resignations, and 6 per cent for miscellaneous causes.

The latter includes departures for physical deficiency, as well as adverse ratings in military aptitude. Relatively few cadets — only 1.4 per cent — are expelled for violating West Point's rigid honor code against unruthfulness, cheating, or stealing.

It isn't the kind of life that would interest someone seeking an easy way to a college degree. It was never meant to be. However, the 598 young men who in 1958 took the cadet oath to "duty, honor, country," and who will graduate today, wouldn't change places with anyone in the world.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Some things are impossible for me to believe, even in the face of evidence. Parapsychology is one. This includes mental telepathy, clairvoyance, spiritualism and extrasensory perception of all kinds. Studies in these matters have been in progress at Duke University for many years, but I am not impressed with the findings.

Twenty-four years ago, 352 members of the American Psychological Association were asked about extrasensory perception. These people should know, and their answers were as follows: 2% said that extrasensory perception is an established fact; 7% said it is a likely possibility; 36% condemned it as a remote possibility; 15% declared it an impossibility; and 40% called it "an unknown."

I agree. And yet I know of three events, rare and mystifying, which are beyond any rationale. One concerns a man in Virginia Beach named Cayce who, as I understand it, had certain powers beyond comprehension. One time when a woman was dying, a physician said that she might be saved if he could find a certain obsolete medical compound.

No one could find it. Cayce was consulted. He told the searchers to go to New Orleans and locate a certain drugstore. There they would find the medicine. They didn't. They phoned to say that the store had no such compound in stock. Mr. Cayce told them to look on the second shelf behind the prescription counter, on the left side. They did. The medicine was there.

Cayce had never been to New Orleans. Two other incidents concern my father and I am acquainted with both. In the month of January, 1943, he saw a small round spotlight on the wall over his bed. There was no light in the room. My mother told him that he was seeing things. He got on a chair. The light was there all right, but there was no source.

My mother, who didn't know what the word occult meant and who would be suspicious of it on sound alone, got out of bed and saw the light. It appeared every night after that. My father pulled the drapes hard to cover the windows, and even hung his hat over the keyhole. The little light almost drove him crazy.

Then on Jan. 23rd, it disappeared. "Something's going to happen," dad said. "Something bad." My mother didn't answer. They went to bed. At 2 a.m. the phone rang. It was my father's sister Margaret. "I don't like to wake you up, Johnny," she said, "but momma just passed away."

On August 2nd, 1957, my mother had a heart attack and was taken to Monmouth Memorial Center. We remained in the room with her until she felt comfortable. Then we went home. It was Sunday night and we watched television. Dad said he felt like reading, so he took a book into the kitchen and closed the door.

He read for awhile. At 10:30 p.m. there was a commercial for a deodorant preceding a television show called What's My Line? The commercial was on when my father came in from the kitchen. "Did you hear anything? he said. I shrugged. "About what?" I said. He shook his head slowly. "I could have sworn I heard your mother calling," he said.

"You're worried about her." I said. "You're imagining things." He smiled a tiny bit. "I guess you're right," he said. "I was reading in the kitchen and I heard her call: 'John! John!' " He sat to watch the t.v. show.

In 10 minutes, the phone rang. It was Dr. Joel Feldman. "Better come down to the hospital," he said to me. "I don't think your mother is going to make it." I drew my father away from the group. "Brace yourself," I said. He looked like a fighter pretending he's not hurt. "Mom?" he said. I nodded. He got a jacket.

We drove down the beach through the cool of the night. The faces of two men looked saffron in the light from the dashboard. I felt that my mother was already gone and I didn't want the shock to hit him hard. "It's better this way," I said. "She's been sick a long time; she's blind; she's 73; the fun is all behind her. She's in a state of grace. It's better this way."

He thought about it. Then he nodded the gray head. "You're right," he said softly. "I guess you're right." We parked at the emergency entrance and went up the elevator to the sixth floor. We hurried to the room where we had left her, two hours earlier.

Dr. Feldman and a nurse stood by the bed. We pushed through. She had gone, but we kissed her in a meaningless farewell. If we could only have told her, just once, how much she had always meant to us. Just once.

The nurse was talking to the doctor. "I was working in the next room," she said. "It was about ten-thirty. Suddenly, I heard someone calling 'John! John!,' but she was gone by the time I got here."

Dodgers Top Pirates In Opener Of Twi-Night Twin Bill, 3-2

Los Angeles Gets All Runs Off Francis

Williams Rings Up 6th Win; Willy Davis Hits Homer In 1st

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Willy Davis drove in a pair of runs on a homer and a double to pace the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader Tuesday night.

The Dodgers scored all their runs off loser Earl Francis. Davis poked his ninth homer into the rightfield stands with none on in the first inning. In the sixth, he doubled home Maury Wills and then scored himself on Tommy Davis' single to chase Francis.

Bob Skinner singled home the first Pirate run in the fifth inning after Bill Mazeroski singled and Dick Groat walked. The other Pirate tally came in the seventh when pinchhitter Dick Schofield singled, took second on Larry Burright's throwing error and scored on Bill Virdon's infield out and Groat's single.

Larry Sherry relieved to preserve Stan Williams' sixth victory against a solo defeat. The Pirates outhit the Dodgers 11-7.

The start of the game was delayed 1 hour, 24 minutes because of rain.

Orioles Down Senators, 6-5

Herzog's Homer Decides Contest

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Whitey Herzog pinch hit a seventh inning homer with one on Tuesday night to give the Baltimore Orioles a 6-5 victory over the Washington Senators in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Robin Roberts, seeking his first win of the season, was scheduled to make his third start for Baltimore in the second game against Claude Osteen of the Senators, but the game was rained out.

Herzog's blow, with Ron Hansen on base via a walk, came off reliever Marty Kutyna, who was charged with his fifth loss. It was the first Oriole hit since the first inning when they scored four runs off Washington starter Don Rudolph.

Jackie Brandt tripled home two of the runs in the first inning and Charlie Lau singled in the other pair. Rudolph then retired 16 batters in a row before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Washington used three home runs against Oriole starter Milt Pappas to battle back and take a 5-4 lead. Ken Retzer hit solo homers in the second and fifth innings and Chuck Hinton hit one with two on in the seventh.

Weeds Aided Mathias Smith Gets Degree
Makowski's 10-2 Best Racers Go To LeMans

By C. V. BURNS

STEVE TAYLOR'S 7th inning homer which enabled Mathias to beat Martinsburg by the score of 3-2 last Thursday in the West Virginia Region 4 baseball finale at Shepherdstown is desribed as a "fluke" by the Martinsburg Journal.

It seems that the ball fell in the weeds near the fence in right field and before outfielder Kenny Watson could find it, Taylor had circled the bases.

If the ball had dropped over or rolled through the fence it would have been a ground-rule double. But it stopped inches away inside the fence and the hit was credited as a home run.

WINNINGEST high school pitcher this season is Albert Makowski, the "iron man" of Mathias High School, who has pitched in every game played by his team and he's 10-2 as Mathias opens play in the state tourney today at Parkersburg.

Ten game winners in the high school ranks have been rare over the past 20 years and Makowski is the first to attain that mark in the tri-state area since 1953 when Tommy Richards of Beall posted an 11-3 record and Lou Hite of Hyndman was 10-3. "Moose" Arnone of Beall was 11-1 in 1952 and 12-0 in 1951.

Makowski wound up the P.V.C. season with an 8-2 record. No pitcher in that circuit had ever won more than six games in previous years.

MATHIAS is the first P.V.C. team to qualify for the West Virginia state baseball tournament since 1956 when Moorefield went to Parkersburg and was ushered out in the first round by Stoco, 4-2.

Moorefield went to state tournaments at Huntington and Parkersburg in 1949 and 1951, losing out in the finals and semi-finals, respectively. Romney was a state finalist in 1953 but lost to Fairview, 13-12.

CLAY SMITH, scoring ace of Piedmont High School's 1955-56 basketball team, which won 22 out of 28 games, has received his master's degree in forestry at Purdue University.

Smith rang up 644 points in 28 games for "Huck" Miers' Lions six years ago when Piedmont went to the state finals and had its 13-game winning streak snapped by Barrackville.

Clay's wife, the former Elaine Metcalfe, of Piedmont, is employed on the staff at Purdue.

Clay is a son of Glen "Tink" Smith, former Piedmont High, Potomac State and Westvaco A.A. cage star.

JOCKEY Bobby Corle, a product of Bedford County, Pa., has ridden four winners at the current Delaware Park race meeting.

The Corles have a new daughter, Cindy, born last week at a Silver Spring, Md., hospital. They make their home in Alexandria, Va.

CHARLES H. BABST, donor of the Babst Award at Allegany High School for 38 years, is here from Charlotte, N. C., for a brief visit.

Charley has sounded out many persons on the idea of giving a college grant-in-aid to the winner instead of a gold wrist watch but the majority contacted thus far feel that the valuable Omega timepiece is preferred by most high school athletes.

ROGER PENSKE, winner of the feature race — the Edgar Vandergrift Memorial Trophy — at the Airport last month, is expected to team up with Walter Hansgen, a five-time winner here, in the big race at LeMans, France, late this month.

Penske is also slated to drive his Cooper Climax in the pro race at Mosport, Canada, Saturday, June 9.

PAUL Diavolikis, the jockey now riding at Charles Town, W. Va., was born in Athens, Greece.

Diavolikis thought his given name of Apostolis was too difficult so he had it changed legally.

The Greek saddlesmith has been riding horses since he was 12 years old. He's now 22.

CALVERT HALL'S Bob Henneman has been vited Baltimore's "Catholic Athlete of the Year," nosing out Gene Beville, who starred for Townson Catholic's championship quint in the Alhambra Invitational Tournament here in March.

Black Labels Trip Exports

Joe Biggs Notches Second Win, 6-2

Joe Biggs notched his second pitching victory of the season yesterday as Carling's Black Labels defeated the Old Exports, 6-2, in a rain-abbreviated Rec Softball League contest called after five innings because of rain at Naval Reserve field.

Biggs paced the victors at the plate with a triple and single while Bob Chaney chipped in with a pair of singles. Bill Younger had two hits and Hank Page a double and single for the Old Exports.

The triumph evened the Black Labels' record at 2-2 while the loss was the third in four starts for the Old Exports. Gene Hess absorbed the loss, his first. The results:

Black Label	300	03—	6	6	0
Old Exports	110	00—	2	7	1

(Called 5 innings, rain)
Joe Riggs and Walt Younger. Gene Hess and Bob Page.

Opening Grid Date Aug. 31 Approved

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —The State Secondary School Activities Commission ruled Tuesday that West Virginia high schools may open their 1962 football seasons on Friday, Aug. 31.

Several schools had scheduled games for Aug. 31, which is only 14 practice days from the beginning of training camp on Aug. 15. Under commission rules the Aug. 31 opening date would have been forbidden because the first game may not be played until 15 days after camp opens if school is in session.

A spokesman emphasized that Tuesday's ruling applied for this year only.

Wins By Forfeit

Shipping won by the forefeit route over Receiving when the latter was unable to muster enough players to field a team for a Kelly-Springfield Softball League game last evening.

WINS HAZELWOOD AWARD—Ronald Manges, three sports star, is shown being presented a gold wrist watch by Victor D. Heisey, principal, for winning the 22nd annual George F. Hazelwood Award last night at Fort Hill High School's commencement. The prize goes annually to the school's best all-around athlete. Ronnie quarterbacked Fort Hill's city championship football team in 1961 and scored both touchdowns in the Thanksgiving Day game, led the Sentinels' 1961-62 basketball team in scoring with 327 points in 19 games and as an outfielder on the baseball team this season he batted .419. He also pitched one game and won it. He is a brother of Roy Manges, winner of the Hazelwood Award in 1950, and Roger Manges, former Fort Hill athlete. Their father, Al Manges, is manager of the Senators of the Little League. Mr. Heisey retires at the end of this school term after having served as principal at Penn Avenue and Fort Hill for the past 34 years.

Old Furnace Stops Pinto Tossers, 5-4

Pitcher Bill Manning held previously unbeaten Pinto to one hit as he pitched his Old Furnace mates to a 5-4 triumph over the visitors in an Inter-Church Softball League game Monday at Fort Ashby. It was the first loss for Pinto after two straight wins.

Harold Kerns with two hits and Ref Moreland with a double paced the Old Furnace attack. The results:

Dapper Dan's Booster Game Pairings Set

12-Inning Contests On Thursday, Friday

The Dapper Dan Little League will officially kick off its season with a two-pronged Booster Game which will be held Thursday and Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Penn Avenue Field.

Pairings for the 16 teams were announced last night by Gene Mason, city recreation director, with the Dan Division clubs hosting the Dapper Division teams.

Each of the teams will play three innings, with 12-inning games slated both Thursday and Friday. Pre-game ceremonies will be held before each contest.

Players will report at Penn Avenue School on South Street at 5:45 p.m. and will parade into the ball park at 6:30. Team managers must have rosters and player contracts turned in at the rec department office prior to game time.

The Booster Game, held annually to finance operation of the two-division circuit, kicks off the regular Dapper Dan Little League season which will open on June 11.

Thursday's game will pit the Phillies vs. Indians in the first three innings, followed by Red Sox at Dodgers, Giants at Senators and Orioles at Angels.

On Friday, the Cardinals will meet the Braves in the opening three innings, followed by Pirates at Tigers, Yankees at Athletics and Cubs at Twins.

Beall-LaSalle Game Is Reset Today At 3:30

Rain yesterday resulted in the postponement of the Allegany County High School Baseball League championship game between LaSalle High School and Beall High School at Frostburg.

An effort will be made to stage the contest today at 3:30 p.m., at Beall High Field.

Coach Enordo Arnone, of the Mountaineers, last night announced that Jim Diehl is slated to pitch for his team while Brother Richard, LaSalle coach, will start Tommy Stitcher.

Bill Andrews and Kenneth "Sookie" Grimes will be the umpires.

Dodgers Top Pirates In Opener Of Twi-Night Twin Bill, 3-2

Los Angeles Gets All Runs Off Francis

Williams Rings Up 6th Win; Willy Davis Hits Homer In 1st

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Willy Davis drove in a pair of runs on a homer and a double to pace the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader Tuesday night.

The Dodgers scored all their runs off loser Earl Francis. Davis poked his ninth homer into the rightfield stands with none on in the first inning. In the sixth, he doubled home Maury Wills and then scored himself on Tommy Davis' single to chase Francis.

Bob Skinner singled home the first Pirate run in the fifth inning after Bill Mazeroski singled and Dick Groat walked. The other Pirate tally came in the seventh when pinchhitter Dick Schofield singled, took second on Larry Burright's throwing error and scored on Bill Virdon's infield out and Groat's single.

Larry Sherry relieved to preserve Stan Williams' sixth victory against a solo defeat. The Pirates outhit the Dodgers 11-7.

The start of the game was delayed 1 hour, 24 minutes because of rain.

Herzog's Homer Decides Contest

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Whitey Herzog pinch hit a seventh inning homer with one on Tuesday night to give the Baltimore Orioles a 6-5 victory over the Washington Senators in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Robin Roberts, seeking his first win of the season, was scheduled to make his third start for Baltimore in the second game against Claude Osteen of the Senators, but the game was rained out.

Herzog's blow, with Ron Hansen on base via a walk, came off reliever Marty Kutyna, who was charged with his fifth loss. It was the first Oriole hit since the first inning when they scored four runs off Washington starter Don Rudolph.

Jackie Brandt tripled home two of the runs in the first inning and Charlie Lau singled in the other pair. Rudolph then retired 16 batters in a row before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

Washington used three home runs against Oriole starter Milt Pappas to battle back and take a 5-4 lead. Ken Retzer hit solo homers in the second and fifth innings and Chuck Hinton hit one with two on in the seventh.

Weeds Aided Mathias Smith Gets Degree
Makowski's 10-2 Best Racers Go To LeMans

By C. V. BURNS

STEVE TAYLOR'S 7th inning homer which enabled Mathias to beat Martinsburg by the score of 3-2 last Thursday in the West Virginia Region 4 baseball finale at Shepherdstown is desribed as a "fluke" by the Martinsburg Journal.

It seems that the ball fell in the weeds near the fence in right field and before outfielder Kenny Watson could find it, Taylor had circled the bases.

If the ball had dropped over or rolled through the fence it would have been a ground-rule double. But it stopped inches away inside the fence and the hit was credited as a home run.

WINNINGEST high school pitcher this season is Albert Makowski, the "iron man" of Mathias High School, who has pitched in every game played by his team and he's 10-2 as Mathias opens play in the state tourney today at Parkersburg.

Ten game winners in the high school ranks have been rare over the past 20 years and Makowski is the first to attain that mark in the tri-state area since 1953 when Tommy Richards of Beall posted an 11-3 record and Lou Hite of Hyndman was 10-3. "Moose" Arnone of Beall was 11-1 in 1952 and 12-0 in 1951.

Makowski wound up the P.V.C. season with an 8-2 record. No pitcher in that circuit had ever won more than six games in previous years.

MATHIAS is the first P.V.C. team to qualify for the West Virginia state baseball tournament since 1956 when Moorefield went to Parkersburg and was ushered out in the first round by Stoco, 4-2.

Moorefield went to state tournaments at Huntington and Parkersburg in 1949 and 1951, losing out in the finals and semi-finals, respectively. Romney was a state finalist in 1953 but lost to Fairview, 13-12.

CLAY SMITH, scoring ace of Piedmont High School's 1955-56 basketball team, which won 22 out of 28 games, has received his master's degree in forestry at Purdue University.

Smith rang up 644 points in 28 games for "Huck" Miers' Lions six years ago when Piedmont went to the state finals and had its 13-game winning streak snapped by Barrackville.

Clay's wife, the former Elaine Metcalfe, of Piedmont, is employed on the staff at Purdue.

Clay is a son of Glen "Tink" Smith, former Piedmont High, Potomac State and Westvaco A.A. cage star.

JOCKEY Bobby Corle, a product of Bedford County, Pa., has ridden four winners at the current Delaware Park race meeting.

The Corles have a new daughter, Cindy, born last week at a Silver Spring, Md., hospital. They make their home in Alexandria, Va.

CHARLES H. BABST, donor of the Babst Award at Allegany High School for 38 years, is here from Charlotte, N. C., for a brief visit.

Charley has sounded out many persons on the idea of giving a college grant-in-aid to the winner instead of a gold wrist watch but the majority contacted thus far feel that the valuable Omega timepiece is preferred by most high school athletes.

ROGER PENSKE, winner of the feature race — the Edgar Vandergrift Memorial Trophy — at the Airport last month, is expected to team up with Walter Hansgen, a five-time winner here, in the big race at LeMans, France, late this month.

Penske is also slated to drive his Cooper Climax in the pro race at Mosport, Canada, Saturday, June 9.

PAUL Diavolikis, the jockey now riding at Charles Town, W. Va., was born in Athens, Greece.

Diavolikis thought his given name of Apostolis was too difficult so he had it changed legally.

The Greek saddlesmith has been riding horses since he was 12 years old. He's now 22.

CALVERT HALL'S Bob Henneman has been vited Baltimore's "Catholic Athlete of the Year," nosing out Gene Beville, who starred for Townson Catholic's championship quint in the Alhambra Invitational Tournament here in March.

Black Labels Trip Exports

Joe Biggs Notches Second Win, 6-2

Joe Biggs notched his second pitching victory of the season yesterday as Carling's Black Labels defeated the Old Exports, 6-2, in a rain-abbreviated Rec Softball League contest called after five innings because of rain at Naval Reserve field.

Biggs paced the victors at the plate with a triple and single while Bob Chaney chipped in with a pair of singles. Bill Younger had two hits and Hank Page a double and single for the Old Exports.

The triumph evened the Black Labels' record at 2-2 while the loss was the third in four starts for the Old Exports. Gene Hess absorbed the loss, his first. The results:

Black Label	300	03—	6 6 0
Old Exports	110	00—	2 7 1

(Called 5 innings, rain)
Joe Riggs and Walt Younger. Gene Hess and Bob Page.

Opening Grid Date Aug. 31 Approved

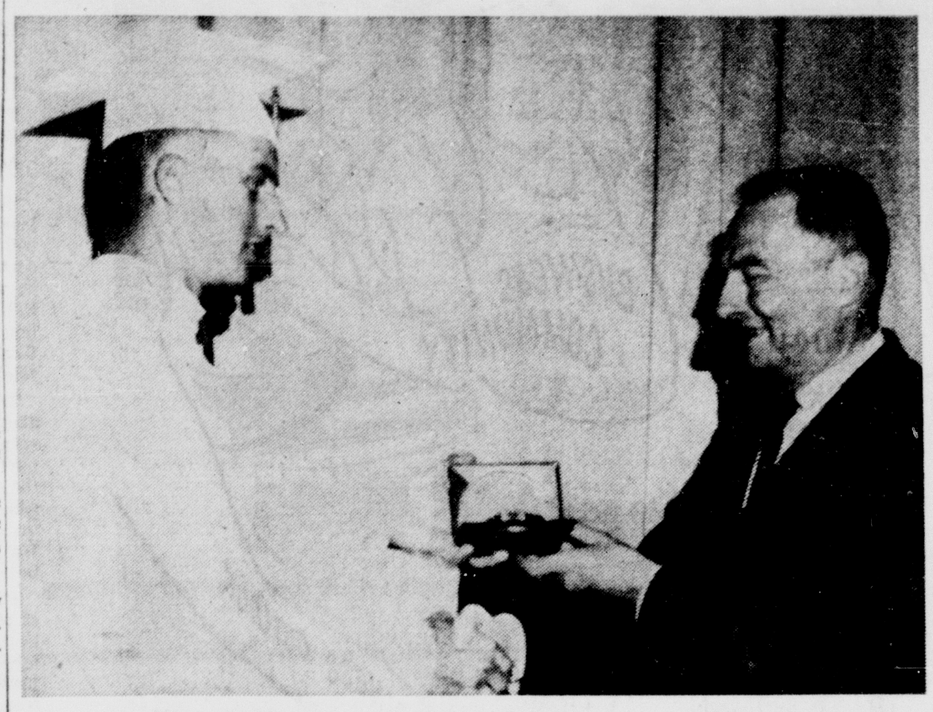

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —The State Secondary School Activities Commission ruled Tuesday that West Virginia high schools may open their 1962 football seasons on Friday, Aug. 31.

Several schools had scheduled games for Aug. 31, which is only 14 practice days from the beginning of training camp on Aug. 15. Under commission rules the Aug. 31 opening date would have been forbidden because the first game may not be played until 15 days after camp opens if school is in session.

A spokesman emphasized that Tuesday's ruling applied for this year only.

Wins By Forfeit

Shipping won by the forefeit route over Receiving when the latter was unable to muster enough players to field a team for a Kelly-Springfield Softball League game last evening.

WINS HAZELWOOD AWARD—Ronald Manges, three sports star, is shown being presented a gold wrist watch by Victor D. Heisey, principal, for winning the 22nd annual George F. Hazelwood Award last night at Fort Hill High School's commencement. The prize goes annually to the school's best all-around athlete. Ronnie quarterbacked Fort Hill's city championship football team in 1961 and scored both touchdowns in the Thanksgiving Day game, led the Sentinels' 1961-62 basketball team in scoring with 327 points in 19 games and as an outfielder on the baseball team this season he batted .419. He also pitched one game and won it. He is a brother of Roy Manges, winner of the Hazelwood Award in 1950, and Roger Manges, former Fort Hill athlete. Their father, Al Manges, is manager of the Senators of the Little League. Mr. Heisey retires at the end of this school term after having served as principal at Penn Avenue and Fort Hill for the past 34 years.

The Recreation Baseball League, formerly known as the High School Rec League, organized last night at City Hall and will operate again this year with six teams and the same set-up as last season.

The six-team circuit will begin play on June 18 with playoffs slated to get underway August 10. The playoffs will be one-game eliminations in the semi-finals with the finals scheduled to be best-of-three series. The top four teams in regular play will compete in the playoffs.

Evans will move up from assistant to manager of the Bernstein's team this season while Flynn takes over as manager of Toy Shop and will be assisted by Pedlozzo.

Boys 15-17 years of age are eligible to participate in the league. They must either live in Cumberland or go to school in the Queen City or have been drafted from the Hot Stove League. They can participate in American Legion baseball and can play in the local Pen Mar Baseball League.

Playing equipment and uniforms were issued following last night's meeting and managers scheduled a number of practice sessions this week.

The VFW team will drill Thursday at 3 p. m. at Stitcher Field. Practices slated Saturday for Stitcher Field include Bernstein's at noon, 40 & 8 at 2 p. m., and VFW at 6 o'clock. Saturday drills at Fort Hill are Toy Shop at noon, and Gurley's at 4 o'clock.

Old Furnace Stops Pinto Tossers, 5-4

Pitcher Bill Manning held previously unbeaten Pinto to one hit as he pitched his Old Furnace mates to a 5-4 triumph over the visitors in an Inter-Church Softball League game Monday at Fort Ashby. It was the first loss for Pinto after two straight wins.

Dale Blough's two-run double in the sixth was the only base knock allowed by Manning who was victimized several times by his team's seven errors. Bob Westfall was the loser.

Harold Kerns with two hits and Ref Moreland with a double paced the Old Furnace attack. The results:

K. Of C. Defeats Jaycees, 3 To 0

Shortstop Keith Schell pounded out a pair of home runs to account for all the scoring as the Knights of Columbus defeated the Jaycees, 3-0, yesterday in a Frostburg Little League encounter.

Danny Edwards, victim of both Schell blasts, was the losing pitcher while Eddie MacAteer picked up the victory with a three-hit shutout effort. MacAteer fanned 11 and walked only one for the K. of C. The results:

'Sleeper' Candidate

A possible "sleeper of the year" candidate for national honors this football season is Jim Moss, West Virginia halfback. At 6-1 and 205 pounds, this brother of a former Mountaineer star plays the game as it was meant to be — fast, tough, and hard.

Dapper Dan's Booster Game Pairings Set

12-Inning Contests On Thursday, Friday

The Dapper Dan Little League will officially kick off its season with a two-pronged Booster Game which will be held Thursday and Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Penn Avenue Field.

Pairings for the 16 teams were announced last night by Gene Mason, city recreation director, with the Dan Division clubs hosting the Dapper Division teams.

Each of the teams will play three innings, with 12-inning games slated both Thursday and Friday. Pre-game ceremonies will be held before each contest.

Players will report at Penn Avenue School on South Street at 5:45 p.m. and will parade into the ball park at 6:30. Team managers must have rosters and player contracts turned in at the rec department office prior to game time.

The Booster Game, held annually to finance operation of the two-division circuit, kicks off the regular Dapper Dan Little League season which will open on June 11.

Thursday's game will pit the Phillies vs. Indians in the first three innings, followed by Red Sox at Dodgers, Giants at Senators and Orioles at Angels.

On Friday, the Cardinals will meet the Braves in the opening three innings, followed by Pirates at Tigers, Yankees at Athletics and Cubs at Twins.

Beall-LaSalle Game Is Reset Today At 3:30

Rain yesterday resulted in the postponement of the Allegany County High School Baseball League championship game between LaSalle High School and Beall High School at Frostburg.

An effort will be made to stage the contest today at 3:30 p.m., at Beall High Field.

Coach Enordo Arnone, of the Mountaineers, last night announced that Jim Diehl is slated to pitch for his team while Brother Richard, LaSalle coach, will start Tommy Stitcher.

Bill Andrews and Kenneth "Sookie" Grimes will be the umpires.

why imported V.O. is known by the company it keeps

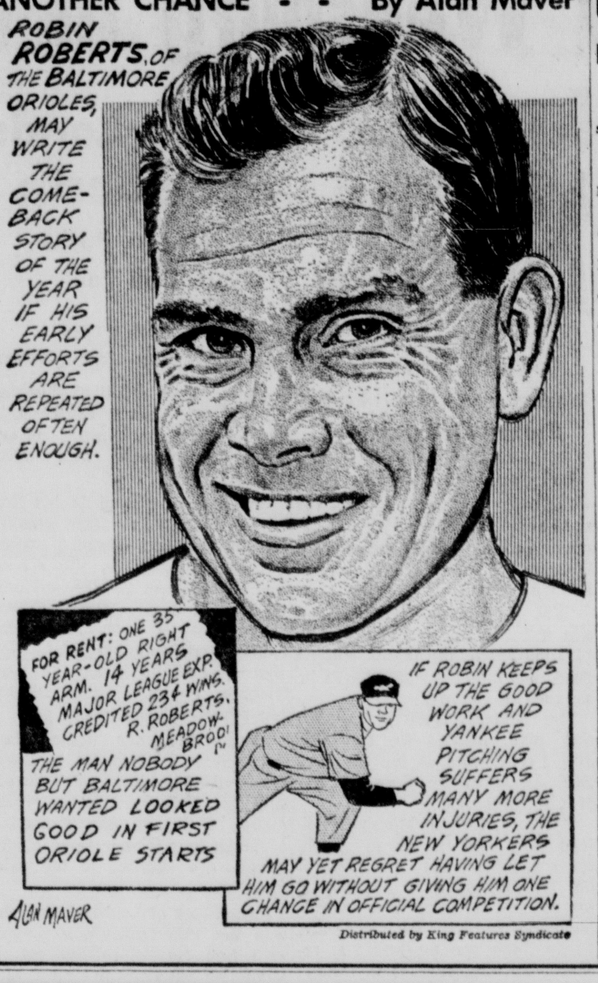

The experts measure the worth of a whisky by three criteria. ☐ The merit of its taste. ☐ The fidelity of its quality. ☐ The consistency of its character. This may be why Seagram's V.O. is considered by so many people of discerning taste to be the world's finest whisky, for V.O. combines a true lightness of tone with a rare brilliance of taste. For over 100 years the integrity and craftsmanship of V.O. have known no peer. That is why it might be well worth your while to give this world-renowned spirit from Canada your personal appraisal.

For over 100 years the integrity and craftsmanship of V.O. have known no peer. That is why it might be well worth your while to give this world-renowned spirit from Canada your personal appraisal.

The only hit yielded by Weaver was a single by Kenny Smith in the fourth inning. The victory gave Weaver a 3-0 record for the season.

Paul Mellin went the route for the Orioles, gave up five hits and fanned five.

Floyd Skelley obtained two of the Eagles' five glows, a leadoff homer in the first inning and a single later in the game.

A running catch by Steve Miller, Eagles' rightfielder, of a drive from the bat of Mellin in the third inning, was the fielding highlight.

Ware's Charlie also placed second in the Western Pleasure, a class of 20 horses.

Shamrock II went on to take a second in the English Pleasure class, over 16 entries, and a second place in the three-gaited saddle horse class.

Four Contests In First Round At Parkersburg

Logan Is Favorite; Makowski Will Face Retton Or Engleka

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Logan is favored to win the state high school baseball tournament opening here Wednesday but that doesn't worry Wildcat Coach Ed Walowac.

"I'm pretty confident we can win it," the Logan mentor said. "I know all of the teams will be good, but I feel my team will be as good or better."

Walowac, former Marshall College star, said he felt his pitching was his weakest spot. Two of his starting pitchers are sophomores and a third is a junior. Sophomore Jesse Richards and Philip Sabo are 6-1 and 2-1 respectively. Junior Larry Canterberry is 6-0.

The mound staff's inexperience cost the Wildcats several runs during the course of the season but Walowac said a good defense and timely hitting made up for that deficit.

Have Good Hitters

Logan is not the only team with good hitters. Marsh Fork and Parkersburg showed they had power in the regionals.

Marsh Fork pounded 12 hits, including two home runs by first baseman Jim Clay, in blanking Marlinton 12-0 in the Region 5 finals. Jim's brother, John, is the team's leading hitter with a .487 average. Stanley Cook heads the Bulldogs' pitching staff with a 9-2 record.

Catcher Bob McPeek and second baseman Bob Hackett hit circuit drives for Parkersburg in its victory over Bridgeport in the Region 2 finals. Senior Tom Wenmoth is the big winner for the Big Reds and undoubtedly will face Marsh Fork in the opening round.

St. Albans, darkhorse entry, boasts the finest record in the school's history—20-4 — and also two of the state's leading pitchers in Larue Downing and Jim Marshl. Downing (11-2) has a no-hitter in tournament play and has not given up an earned run since the eliminations started.

Wins All 10

Fairview and Mathias depend mainly on pitching and a tight defense. Fairview's ace pitchers are John Retton, brother of Ronnie Retton, who starred for West Virginia University, and Jim Engleka. Retton also is handy with a bat. He knocked in two runs with a triple and two singles in Fairview's 4-3 win over Buckhannon in the Region 3 finals.

Righthander Albert Makowski has won all 10 of Mathias' games this season. He also was the victim of both its losses. During the past two years Makowski has posted a 16-3 record.

Wellsburg has been counting a great deal on the hitting of shortstop Jim Tokas and catcher Ron Romanoski. Tokas is batting .369 and Romanoski .383. Tokas got the only hit, a double, in Wellsburg's 2-1 win over Benwood in the Region 1 finals.

Spotty pitching and ineffective hitting have resulted in five losses for Bluefield but the Beavers could surprise the field if they jell.

Fairview and Bluefield open play at 1 p.m. EST Wednesday, followed by Logan versus St. Albans. Wellsburg plays Mathias at 7 p. m. and Parkersburg tackles Marsh Fork in night games.

The semifinals will be held Thursday and the finals Friday.

CCC Golf Team Faces Kingwood

The men's golf team of the Cumberland Country Club will play its second match of the season Sunday, meeting the Preston Country Club team at Kingwood, W. Va.

In the opening match of the campaign the CCC linksmen defeated Martinsburg here by the score of 33½ to 8½ points.

The Men's Golf Association of the Cumberland Country Club

A mixed scotch foursome tournament will be staged Friday after 4 p.m., at the Cumberland Country Club.

In an eighth flight match in the men's spring handicap tournament, Bob Keech was returned the winner over Henry Fredericks, 2 and 1.

Stan Musial League To Practice Today

The LaVale Stan Musial Little League will practice today (Wed.) at 6 p.m. at Parkside Field, according to Len Cody, loop director, who said that players will be separated into teams for league play.

The circuit is designed for boys not playing on regular LaVale teams. Cody said that boys in the LaVale area who have not tried out as yet, can report to Parkside Field today.

Snead Lands Open Berth

Worsham, Parks And Kroll Fail

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam Snead qualified Tuesday for his 22nd crack at the U.S. Open Golf Championship, the one major tournament he's never won.

Snead, who played in his first National Open as a raw, country boy in 1937, won one of 81 berths decided Tuesday on the second and last day of 36-hole sectional tests from coast-to-coast. A two-round total of 71-70—141 at the rain-soaked Montclair, N.J., Golf Club course did it for the West Virginia capitalist, the all-time top money winner in pro golf.

Most of the other "name" players made it through sectional tests at Montclair, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Atlanta, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco although four former Open champions were shunted to the sidelines.

Jack Fleck of Los Angeles, who won the 1955 Open in a playoff with Ben Hogan, missed out at Montclair along with Tony Manero, the 1936 winner. Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., where this year's Open will be played June 14-16, the 1947 Open champ in a playoff with Snead, failed in the Pittsburgh sectional along with Sam Parks Jr., who won the 1935 Open in one of the all-time upsets of tournament golf.

Worsham shot 77-81—159 and Parks 81-76—157—both well above the 36-hole total of 153 that was required in the Pittsburgh eliminations.

Several regular tour pros, including Don Fairfield, Mike Fetchick and Ted Kroll, were casualties at Montclair.

Nazelrod Posts 427 In Archery Club Tournament

Paul Nazelrod took top honors Sunday in the Association of Maryland Bowhunters archery tournament with a 427 at the Cumberland Bowhunters Club range on Pine Ridge Road.

Nazelrod's total was the highest achieved in competitive shooting by a Cumberland club member and is one point short of the range record posted by Wayne Baumbaugh of the Conococheague Archery Club of Greencastle, Pa.

Gene DeHaven registered a 405 to win the X-pert A Class while Lee Stevens took the X-pert B Class with a 323. Bowmen class was won by Clyde Nazelrod with 222.

Charles Crawford of Tri-Towns Archers of Westernport shot a 178 to win the Archer class and Bernard Wenrick topped the Novice class with 157.

In the junior division Steven Smith of Tri-Towns won with a 262 while Calvin Crawford won the Archer class with 77. Robert Webster Jr., posted a 33 to win the novice class in the junior division.

The 11th annual AMBH championship tournament will be held September 1-3 at the Anne Arundel Bowmen's Range, Crownsville. The registration deadline is July 25.

Home On The Range

As befits a Mountaineer, who has always been handy with a rifle, West Virginia University placed Lewis Rowan on the All-America first team and Bob Davies on the second team.

Coed Athlete

Marilee Hohmann, a blonde rifle sharpshooter, is the first coed to earn the varsity letter award at West Virginia.

Giants Wallop Chicago, 11-4

Score 12th Victory In Last 13 Contests

CHICAGO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants whacked 13 hits, and scored five unearned runs while Billy O'Dell limited the Chicago Cubs to five hits Tuesday to give the National League leaders their fifth straight win, 11-4.

The victory was the 12th in the last 13 games for the Giants and the sixth straight decision for O'Dell over the Cubs.

O'Dell, who struck out 10, was the victim of an unearned run in the third, a run-scoring double by Ken Hubbs in the fourth and a two-run homer by Ron Santo in the fifth.

After Hubbs' homer, O'Dell retired the next 13 batters in a row before walking Hubbs with two out in the ninth.

Harvey Kuenn and Willie Mays drove in three of the runs with doubles.

St. Louis Acquires Smith For Grammas

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —The St. Cardinals traded a shortstop and outfielder "on the spur of a moment" Tuesday with the Chicago Cubs, and said that the ailing Minnie Minoso was ready to suit up with the team for practice.

General Manager Bing Devine said he telephoned Cubs' General Manager John Holland Tuesday morning and both quickly decided on a trade the two clubs figured would help each other.

The fifth place Cardinals needed a righthanded hitter in 28-year-old Bobby Gene Smith, who the Redbirds traded to the Phillies several years ago. Thus, Smith returned to the Cardinals via the Phillies, New York Mets, and the Cubs.

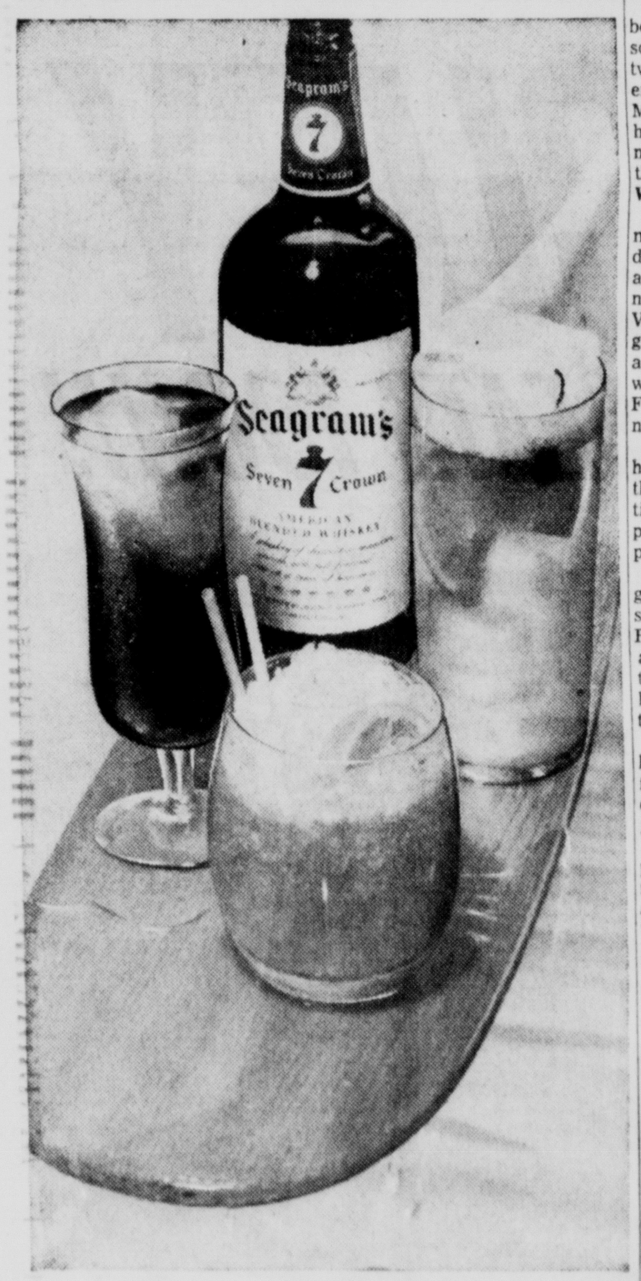

To get Smith, Devine parted with 35-year-old Alex Grammas, who had a weak .111 average and 26-year-old Don Landrum, who has been hitting at a .314 clip.

The Redbirds also received shortstop Daryl Robertson, who moved from San Antonio to the Cardinals' Tulsa club.

Lefty John Weaver turned in a one-hit pitching performance and mowed down eleven via the strikeout route as the Cresaptown Eagles defeated the LaVale Orioles yesterday at Cresaptown by the score of 7-2 and took over the runner-up spot in the Pen-Mar Little League.

The only hit yielded by Weaver was a single by Kenny Smith in the fourth inning. The victory gave Weaver a 3-0 record for the season.

Paul Mellin went the route for the Orioles, gave up five hits and fanned five.

Floyd Skelley obtained two of the Eagles' five glows, a leadoff homer in the first inning and a single later in the game.

A running catch by Steve Miller, Eagles' rightfielder, of a drive from the bat of Mellin in the third inning, was the fielding highlight.

Four Contests In First Round At Parkersburg

Logan Is Favorite; Makowski Will Face Retton Or Engleka

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Logan is favored to win the state high school baseball tournament opening here Wednesday but that doesn't worry Wildcat Coach Ed Walowac.

"I'm pretty confident we can win it," the Logan mentor said. "I know all of the teams will be good, but I feel my team will be as good or better."

The Wildcats have a hard-hitting nine, headed by shortstop Jim Perry, who is batting over .500. All of the regulars are averaging over .300.

Walowac, former Marshall College star, said he felt his pitching was his weakest spot. Two of his starting pitchers are sophomores and a third is a junior. Sophomore Jesse Richards and Philip Sabo are 6-1 and 2-1 respectively. Junior Larry Canterberry is 6-0.

The mound staff's inexperience cost the Wildcats several runs during the course of the season but Walowac said a good defense and timely hitting made up for that deficit.

Have Good Hitters

Logan is not the only team with good hitters. Marsh Fork and Parkersburg showed they had power in the regionals.

Marsh Fork pounded 12 hits, including two home runs by first baseman Jim Clay, in blanking Marlinton 12-0 in the Region 5 finals. Jim's brother, John, is the team's leading hitter with a .487 average. Stanley Cook heads the Bulldogs' pitching staff with a 9-2 record.

Catcher Bob McPeek and second baseman Bob Hackett hit circuit drives for Parkersburg in its victory over Bridgeport in the Region 2 finals. Senior Tom Wenmoth is the big winner for the Big Reds and undoubtedly will face Marsh Fork in the opening round.

St. Albans, darkhorse entry, boasts the finest record in the school's history—20-4 — and also two of the state's leading pitchers in Larue Downing and Jim Marshl. Downing (11-2) has a no-hitter in tournament play and has not given up an earned run since the eliminations started.

Wins All 10

Fairview and Mathias depend mainly on pitching and a tight defense. Fairview's ace pitchers are John Retton, brother of Ronnie Retton, who starred for West Virginia University, and Jim Engleka. Retton also is handy with a bat. He knocked in two runs with a triple and two singles in Fairview's 4-3 win over Buckhannon in the Region 3 finals.

Righthander Albert Makowski has won all 10 of Mathias' games this season. He also was the victim of both its losses. During the past two years Makowski has posted a 16-3 record.

Wellsburg has been counting a great deal on the hitting of shortstop Jim Tokas and catcher Ron Romanoski. Tokas is batting .369 and Romanoski .383. Tokas got the only hit, a double, in Wellsburg's 2-1 win over Benwood in the Region 1 finals.

Spotty pitching and ineffective hitting have resulted in five losses for Bluefield but the Beavers could surprise the field if they jell.

Fairview and Bluefield open play at 1 p.m. EST Wednesday, followed by Logan versus St. Albans. Wellsburg plays Mathias at 7 p. m. and Parkersburg tackles Marsh Fork in night games.

The semifinals will be held Thursday and the finals Friday.

The Men's Golf Association of the Cumberland Country Club

A mixed scotch foursome tournament will be staged Friday after 4 p.m., at the Cumberland Country Club.

In an eighth flight match in the men's spring handicap tournament, Bob Keech was returned the winner over Henry Fredericks, 2 and 1.

Stan Musial League To Practice Today

The LaVale Stan Musial Little League will practice today (Wed.) at 6 p.m. at Parkside Field, according to Len Cody, loop director, who said that players will be separated into teams for league play.

The circuit is designed for boys not playing on regular LaVale teams. Cody said that boys in the LaVale area who have not tried out as yet, can report to Parkside Field today.

Snead Lands Open Berth

Worsham, Parks And Kroll Fail

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam Snead qualified Tuesday for his 22nd crack at the U.S. Open Golf Championship, the one major tournament he's never won.

Snead, who played in his first National Open as a raw, country boy in 1937, won one of 81 berths decided Tuesday on the second and last day of 36-hole sectional tests from coast-to-coast. A two-round total of 71-70—141 at the rain-soaked Montclair, N.J., Golf Club course did it for the West Virginia capitalist, the all-time top money winner in pro golf.

Most of the other "name" players made it through sectional tests at Montclair, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Detroit, Atlanta, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco although four former Open champions were shunted to the sidelines.

Jack Fleck of Los Angeles, who won the 1955 Open in a playoff with Ben Hogan, missed out at Montclair along with Tony Manero, the 1936 winner. Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., where this year's Open will be played June 14-16, the 1947 Open champ in a playoff with Snead, failed in the Pittsburgh sectional along with Sam Parks Jr., who won the 1935 Open in one of the all-time upsets of tournament golf.

Worsham shot 77-81—159 and Parks 81-76—157—both well above the 36-hole total of 153 that was required in the Pittsburgh eliminations.

Several regular tour pros, including Don Fairfield, Mike Fetchick and Ted Kroll, were casualties at Montclair.

Nazelrod Posts 427 In Archery Club Tournament

Paul Nazelrod took top honors Sunday in the Association of Maryland Bowhunters archery tournament with a 427 at the Cumberland Bowhunters Club range on Pine Ridge Road.

Nazelrod's total was the highest achieved in competitive shooting by a Cumberland club member and is one point short of the range record posted by Wayne Baumbaugh of the Conococheague Archery Club of Greencastle, Pa.

Gene DeHaven registered a 405 to win the X-pert A Class while Lee Stevens took the X-pert B Class with a 323. Bowmen class was won by Clyde Nazelrod with 222.

Charles Crawford of Tri-Towns Archers of Westernport shot a 178 to win the Archer class and Bernard Wenrick topped the Novice class with 157.

In the junior division Steven Smith of Tri-Towns won with a 262 while Calvin Crawford won the Archer class with 77. Robert Webster Jr., posted a 33 to win the novice class in the junior division.

The 11th annual AMBH championship tournament will be held September 1-3 at the Anne Arundel Bowmen's Range, Crownsville. The registration deadline is July 25.

Home On The Range

As befits a Mountaineer, who has always been handy with a rifle, West Virginia University placed Lewis Rowan on the All-America first team and Bob Davies on the second team.

Coed Athlete

Marilee Hohmann, a blonde rifle sharpshooter, is the first coed to earn the varsity letter award at West Virginia.

Giants Wallop Chicago, 11-4

Score 12th Victory In Last 13 Contests

CHICAGO (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants whacked 13 hits, and scored five unearned runs while Billy O'Dell limited the Chicago Cubs to five hits Tuesday to give the National League leaders their fifth straight win, 11-4.

The victory was the 12th in the last 13 games for the Giants and the sixth straight decision for O'Dell over the Cubs.

O'Dell, who struck out 10, was the victim of an unearned run in the third, a run-scoring double by Ken Hubbs in the fourth and a two-run homer by Ron Santo in the fifth.

After Hubbs' homer, O'Dell retired the next 13 batters in a row before walking Hubbs with two out in the ninth.

Market Up On Average After See-Saw Session

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market see-sawed up and down Tuesday despite increased prospects of a tax cut next year and other good economic news. But trading ended with leading stocks going up.

There was no single, pronounced trend in transactions. Trading, its rate swelling and ebbing, was slightly higher than Monday into the closing half hour. At one time the ticker tape ran 34 minutes behind transactions, then it caught up and was about three minutes late at the 3:30 p.m. EDT closing.

Traders had a night to consider Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon's pledge of top-to-bottom tax cuts planned for next year, a proposal that would seem calculated to stimulate the economy. As the day wore on, Washington dispatched quoted congressional leaders as saying they favored the proposals although details were lacking.

Also in mid-session came news that April business sales, according to the Commerce Department, reached record heights.

While the market averages ended slightly higher, more stocks showed declines than showed gains, 581 to 507. Of the others, 229 were unchanged.

Trading totaled 6,140,000 shares for the day, well over the 5,380,000 posted Monday when the market slumped.

The Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at the close was 594.96, up 1.28 or 0.21 per cent. Standard & Poor's was at 57.57, up 0.30 for the day.

Market Up On Average After See-Saw Session

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market see-sawed up and down Tuesday despite increased prospects of a tax cut next year and other good economic news. But trading ended with leading stocks going up.

There was no single, pronounced trend in transactions. Trading, its rate swelling and ebbing, was slightly higher than Monday into the closing half hour. At one time the ticker tape ran 34 minutes behind transactions, then it caught up and was about three minutes late at the 3:30 p.m. EDT closing.

Traders had a night to consider Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon's pledge of top-to-bottom tax cuts planned for next year, a proposal that would seem calculated to stimulate the economy. As the day wore on, Washington dispatched quoted congressional leaders as saying they favored the proposals although details were lacking.

Also in mid-session came news that April business sales, according to the Commerce Department, reached record heights.

While the market averages ended slightly higher, more stocks showed declines than showed gains, 581 to 507. Of the others, 229 were unchanged.

Trading totaled 6,140,000 shares for the day, well over the 5,380,000 posted Monday when the market slumped.

The Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at the close was 594.96, up 1.28 or 0.21 per cent. Standard & Poor's was at 57.57, up 0.30 for the day.

HEY THERE: You with the bills in your hand. With the help of the want ads you can probably pay some or all of them. Sell anything from the old piano to the old homestead with a low cost, quick result-getting classified ad.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance is a college graduate, has excellent character and high moral standards. He did graduate work in engineering school but has now decided to make the army his career.

My father is opposed to anything that smacks of the military. He hates killing, guns, uniforms and violence. He was a prisoner of war in Germany for two years which undoubtedly accounts for his bitter feelings.

Mother says my life will be hell if I marry a man who makes the army his career. She warned me that we would have frequent separations and I'd have to drag our children all over the face of the earth. She also claims some army posts are primitive, the schools are inferior and the women are driven to drink because of anxiety and boredom.

I love Jim but now I'm afraid to marry him. Are my folks right? Can you help me? My head is—SPINNING

Dear Spinning: The best authorities on this subject are army wives themselves. The women who are now living the life are best qualified to tell you what you want to know.

I invite the Army wives to write. The most informative and interesting letters will be printed.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a red-hot office problem. Please don't print the name of the city because none of us can afford to lose our jobs.

The boss' secretary insists on opening all the mail that comes to this office. The words "personal" or "confidential" mean absolutely nothing. We've complained repeatedly but it does no good. The boss is definitely on HER side.

We resent the invasion of privacy, but the problem extends beyond that. Frequently our letters are sent on for filing and we don't get to see them. Imagine the frustration when a friend or a customer phones and asks "Why haven't I received a reply to the letter I wrote three weeks ago?"

If you can think of a solution you're a genius. Please give us a hand.—INVADED

Dear Invaded: Since the boss is "on her side" your best bet is to instruct one and all to write to you at home. It's inconvenient, but it may save you from an ulcer attack.

In the meantime, start looking for another job. Your working conditions sound impossible.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother died from alcoholism four months ago. His wife was a bar fly. She had left him and their 12-year-old daughter, Lucy, several months before. The woman didn't even attend the funeral and we don't know where she is.

My husband and I took the 12-year-old into our home. We have two nice children, a boy 8 and a girl 9. They were thrilled at the prospect of having Lucy in our family.

We expected that Lucy might have a little trouble adjusting, but we didn't know she'd be a serious problem. She lies, fights with our children, and is unspeakably careless about herself.

She refuses to bathe and I almost have to pull her out of bed to go to school.

When one considers the home she came from, and what she has here, you'd think she'd consider herself fortunate. Instead she is resentful and seems to hate us. We need some help.—D AND R

Dear D and R: A child reared in an atmosphere of drunkenness and infidelity can hardly be expected to turn overnight into a bright, sunny little cherub. This girl has deep emotional wounds and they'll be a long time healing.

You were courageous to accept the challenge. Please be patient. Lucy needs love, understanding and probably therapy as well.

Ask your doctor about help for her. Good luck and God bless you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your defense of nurses was weak and foolish. You told Mrs. Mayo who complained about the hospital nurse giving her husband too much personal attention that the nurse was probably trying to be friendly, "Like it says in the manual."

My husband's nurse had a manual all her own. She hung a POSITIVELY NO VISITORS sign on his door, and made it clear that this meant me—said it was doctor's orders.

When he left the hospital, he continued to see this nurse. I found out about it and naturally I lost my temper. We happened to be in the yard at the time and I hit him with a croquet mallet. He hired a fast-talking lawyer and is suing me for divorce.

So, Ann, if you had told Mrs. Mayo to keep her eyes open, instead of to shut them, your advice might have saved her from the trouble I am now going through.—BATTLE SCARRED

DEAR SCARRED: The "other woman," be she a nurse, a secretary or a bubble dancer, is the symptom of a problem that started before she came along.

The person whose physical resistance is low is susceptible to all sorts of germs and viruse. An unhealthy marriage is also vulnerable. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Board Is Invited To Civil Defense Meet

Charles G. Smith, director of Civil Defense for Allegany County, wrote the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to invite a representative of the board to attend a meeting at the underground CD control center at Pikesville on June 21 and 22.

Smith said that Gov. Tawes and William Durkee, director of the Department of Defense, will be at the session. Primary purpose is to discuss the 1963 Civil Defense policy guidance and new planning action required due to the missile capabilities.

Smith also notified the board that James L. Lee, administrative assistant to the county CD organization, will go on military leave June 16 through June 30. Lee is a member of the Military Police Battalion of the Army Reserve at Lonaconing.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance is a college graduate, has excellent character and high moral standards. He did graduate work in engineering school but has now decided to make the army his career.

My father is opposed to anything that smacks of the military. He hates killing, guns, uniforms and violence. He was a prisoner of war in Germany for two years which undoubtedly accounts for his bitter feelings.

Mother says my life will be hell if I marry a man who makes the army his career. She warned me that we would have frequent separations and I'd have to drag our children all over the face of the earth. She also claims some army posts are primitive, the schools are inferior and the women are driven to drink because of anxiety and boredom.

I love Jim but now I'm afraid to marry him. Are my folks right? Can you help me? My head is—SPINNING

Dear Spinning: The best authorities on this subject are army wives themselves. The women who are now living the life are best qualified to tell you what you want to know.

I invite the Army wives to write. The most informative and interesting letters will be printed.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a red-hot office problem. Please don't print the name of the city because none of us can afford to lose our jobs.

The boss' secretary insists on opening all the mail that comes to this office. The words "personal" or "confidential" mean absolutely nothing. We've complained repeatedly but it does no good. The boss is definitely on HER side.

We resent the invasion of privacy, but the problem extends beyond that. Frequently our letters are sent on for filing and we don't get to see them. Imagine the frustration when a friend or a customer phones and asks "Why haven't I received a reply to the letter I wrote three weeks ago?"

If you can think of a solution you're a genius. Please give us a hand.—INVADED

Dear Invaded: Since the boss is "on her side" your best bet is to instruct one and all to write to you at home. It's inconvenient, but it may save you from an ulcer attack.

In the meantime, start looking for another job. Your working conditions sound impossible.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother died from alcoholism four months ago. His wife was a bar fly. She had left him and their 12-year-old daughter, Lucy, several months before. The woman didn't even attend the funeral and we don't know where she is.

My husband and I took the 12-year-old into our home. We have two nice children, a boy 8 and a girl 9. They were thrilled at the prospect of having Lucy in our family.

We expected that Lucy might have a little trouble adjusting, but we didn't know she'd be a serious problem. She lies, fights with our children, and is unspeakably careless about herself.

She refuses to bathe and I almost have to pull her out of bed to go to school.

When one considers the home she came from, and what she has here, you'd think she'd consider herself fortunate. Instead she is resentful and seems to hate us. We need some help.—D AND R

Dear D and R: A child reared in an atmosphere of drunkenness and infidelity can hardly be expected to turn overnight into a bright, sunny little cherub. This girl has deep emotional wounds and they'll be a long time healing.

You were courageous to accept the challenge. Please be patient. Lucy needs love, understanding and probably therapy as well.

Ask your doctor about help for her. Good luck and God bless you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your defense of nurses was weak and foolish. You told Mrs. Mayo who complained about the hospital nurse giving her husband too much personal attention that the nurse was probably trying to be friendly, "Like it says in the manual."

My husband's nurse had a manual all her own. She hung a POSITIVELY NO VISITORS sign on his door, and made it clear that this meant me—said it was doctor's orders.

When he left the hospital, he continued to see this nurse. I found out about it and naturally I lost my temper. We happened to be in the yard at the time and I hit him with a croquet mallet. He hired a fast-talking lawyer and is suing me for divorce.

So, Ann, if you had told Mrs. Mayo to keep her eyes open, instead of to shut them, your advice might have saved her from the trouble I am now going through.—BATTLE SCARRED

DEAR SCARRED: The "other woman," be she a nurse, a secretary or a bubble dancer, is the symptom of a problem that started before she came along.

The person whose physical resistance is low is susceptible to all sorts of germs and viruse. An unhealthy marriage is also vulnerable. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Board Is Invited To Civil Defense Meet

Charles G. Smith, director of Civil Defense for Allegany County, wrote the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to invite a representative of the board to attend a meeting at the underground CD control center at Pikesville on June 21 and 22.

Smith said that Gov. Tawes and William Durkee, director of the Department of Defense, will be at the session. Primary purpose is to discuss the 1963 Civil Defense policy guidance and new planning action required due to the missile capabilities.

Smith also notified the board that James L. Lee, administrative assistant to the county CD organization, will go on military leave June 16 through June 30. Lee is a member of the Military Police Battalion of the Army Reserve at Lonaconing.

Keech, Chaney Are Nominated

Mrs. Roeder Is Top Vote Getter

Two South Cumberland businessmen were nominated as candidates for mayor in the June 19 general municipal election during yesterday's quiet primary election.

Slightly less than half of the city's registered voters turned up between showers to nominate incumbent J. Edwin Keech and Earl D. Chaney for the mayoral race.

Four other mayoral candidates, Christopher E. Roeder, Edgar D. Growden, A. Lee Marple and Paul A. Shook, trailed way behind the top vote-getters.

The eight Council candidates, according to unofficial but complete returns, will be Mrs. Lucile Roeder, William V. Keegan, G. Ray Light, Frederick J. Hill, Philmore F. Felming, George H. Tederick, Keith T. Sisk and George O. Hollar.

Gets Top Vote

Mrs. Roeder, who is completing a four-year term as finance commissioner, proved to be the top vote getter, and was endorsed by 2,612 voters.

Mr. Keegan, a former police commissioner, placed second with 2,064 votes; G. Ray Light, present water commissioner, was in third place with 1,749 votes.

Frederick J. Hill, making his first political venture, was in fourth place with 1,600 votes; Mr. Fleming, present police and fire commissioner, placed fifth with 1,531; Mr. Tederick, former water commissioner, was sixth with 1,523; Mr. Sisk, who was twice nominated but never elected to Council, received 1,228 votes and Mr. Hollar, making his first try for city office, placed eighth with 961 votes.

Vote Is Light

A total of 5,172 votes were cast in the primary. This represents 49.4 per cent of the 10,468 registered voters and was about 20 per cent less than was predicted, based on past primaries.

Election officials reported early in the day that the vote was light, and it continued that way until the polls closed at 7 p. m.

Unofficial but complete returns from each of the 15 polling places follow:

FOR MAYOR

J. Edwin Keech	2,309
Earl D. Chaney	1,463
Christopher E. Roeder	434
Edgar D. Growden	413
A. Lee Marple	337

Is Busy Place

The busiest place during the election was City Registration headquarters at City Hall, where hundreds of calls were received concerning registration.

Most of the calls came from people who were found to be registered but were trying to vote at the wrong polling place.

Most of them had moved and had neglected to notify city voting officials of the change of address.

Most of the other calls came from citizens whose names were stricken from the books for failure to vote during a five-year period.

City registration books will not be open until June 26.

Engineers Say Seneca Dam Would Be Safe

Mathias Seeking Views On Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army engineers say a proposed 84-foot dam on the Potomac River at Seneca, Md., would be relatively safe from natural disaster on enemy attack.

And the threat of flood from any kind of breach, they said, is no greater than the flood possibility that now exists.

The views were expressed in a letter to Rep. Charles Mathias Jr., R-Md.

Mathias told reporters he is seeking a number of individual reports on the proposed dam about 15 miles upstream from Washington in an effort to get as many views as possible and to stimulate public discussion.

Is Controversial

The proposed Seneca dam, which would be the main dam in a system of 16 major and 418 smaller reservoirs outlined in tentative plans for the Potomac River Basin, is a controversial project.

Col. Warren R. Johnson, Army district engineer who recently outlined his recommendations for the basin, wrote Mathias regarding the views of Army engineers concerning the possible dangers to Washington from the dam.

Johnson said studies gave these conclusions:

1. The dam itself is not a remunerative target for a potential enemy.

2. The probability of a long range attack either purposely or accidentally breaching the dam is very small.

3. With the reservoir drawdown to water supply level, the threat of flood in any kind of breach is no greater than the flood possibility that exists now.

Queries Udall

The engineers said earthquake and foundation failures are no problem here because the area has no earthquake potential and the foundations are of solid rock. The type of dam, a gravity concrete structure with an earth wing, is highly resistant to failure from outside sources, the engineers said.

Mathias said he has written to Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall for his views, but has not received a reply.

The congressman said he is disappointed that a dam on the main stem of the Potomac is proposed and would oppose such a project unless it is shown to be absolutely essential to provide metropolitan Washington with enough water.

Hearing Tonight

HANCOCK, Md. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers will hold the seventh in a series of public hearings here Wednesday night on a proposed $500 million Potomac River Basin development program.

Plans for a $14.5 million dam on the Monocacy River were outlined by corps officials during a hearing in Frederick Monday.

Most of the sentiment expressed at that meeting was against construction of a dam the size of the one proposed. Among the groups opposing the facility was the Board of Carroll County Commissioners.

Another Trial Of Automatic Lights Planned

Longer Traffic Cycle To Be Used

The Police Department is completing plans for another test of automatic traffic control on Baltimore Street, Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming said yesterday.

He said the test period will begin Thursday if necessary adjustments to the traffic lights can be completed.

Mr. Fleming said plans call for adding 10 seconds to each vehicular traffic cycle and to leave the Walk cycle unchanged.

Will Observe

Plans call for continuing the trial period for several days if the automatic controls are found feasible, he said.

Mr. Fleming said representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Cumberland Merchants Association will be asked to help check on the results of the test.

He said last week's unsuccessful test showed that most of the trouble occurred when freight trains blocked crossings. Another source of trouble noted was many drivers failed to watch lights closely, and failed to start as soon as they received a green light.

Police said officers will work on the street, with the lights, during the test.

The department, he said, hopes to complete painting traffic lines on Baltimore Street as soon as weather permits.

Paint applied this week, he said, has not been drying properly because of frequent rains and high humidity.

Plan Slanting Lines

Plans are being made to seek the correction of a traffic situation which develops at the intersection of Baltimore and Canal streets.

Mr. Fleming said slanting lines will be painted at the intersection, along with Do Not Block Intersection warnings, so traffic can be kept moving at the point.

He said the city code prohibits the blocking of intersections and that it will be necessary to enforce the rule.

Man Faces Charge In Road Death

Leonard Oliver Bible, 37, of RFD 4, city, yesterday was charged with manslaughter by automobile in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Robertson, 42, of 247 Virginia Avenue, who was fatally injured in a two car collision on May 18 on Route 51.

Bible posted $500 with Magistrate Paul W. Barnett yesterday afternoon and a hearing in the case will be held at a later date in Trial Magistrate Court.

Mrs. Robertson was a passenger in a car operated by Bible when it collided with another auto driven by Paul Derwood Sites, 36, of RFD 2, city.

The victim was taken to Memorial Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival. Death was due to a broken neck.

Trooper Roger Reynolds investigated the crash which occurred on the Oldtown Road about three miles from the city limits. Trooper Reynolds said the Bible vehicle crossed the center of the highway and struck the Sites car.

D.C. Woman Hurt In Auto Accident Near City Limits

A 48-year-old Washington, D. C. woman was hospitalized here yesterday after the car she was driving ran off U. S. Route 40 just east of the city limits and rammed into a parked car.

Mrs. Daisy Lee Johnson, 3321 Senator Avenue, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital suffering from a facial laceration. Her condition last night was reported "satisfactory". X-rays were to be taken.

Tfc. R. L. Davis of the Maryland State Police said the accident occurred at 5:15 p. m. as the woman was traveling west on Route 40 about six-tenths mile east of Cumberland.

The auto ran off the left of the highway and rammed into a parked dump truck, the trooper said.

Bike Tags To Be Sold At City Playgrounds

Local youngsters will be able to purchase bicycle tags at their neighborhood playgrounds again this year, eliminating the necessity of pedaling to City Police Headquarters in downtown Cumberland.

The Cumberland Police and Recreation Departments and the Optimist Club here are cooperating in the sale of tags to those with bikes in "tip-top" operating condition.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney yesterday released the following schedule:

Monday, June 18, Post Playground; Tuesday, June 19, Gephart; Wednesday, June 20, Fort Cumberland; Thursday, June 21, North End; Friday, June 22, Mt. Royal.

Monday, June 25, Columbia Street; Tuesday, June 26, Pennsylvania Avenue; Wednesday, June 27, West Side; Thursday, June 28, Johnson Heights; and Friday, June 29, Centre Street.

Hours for inspection and issuance of tags each day will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Cpl. Oliver Cook of the local police department will be on hand to assist in the inspection program with members of the Optimist Club.

Robert Collins and Harold Brooks, co-chairmen for the service club, said the organization, on behalf of "Bicycle Check Week," sponsored nationally by the Optimists, will issue a safety reflector light to those getting tags.

The bikes will be inspected before tags are issued, according to authorities who remind youngsters that a safe bike includes a horn or bell, headlight, tail light reflector and good brakes.

Last year over 2,000 tags were sold in Cumberland, said Mrs. Margaret Sisk, clerk at police headquarters, who issues licenses which cost 25 cents.

Manges To Attend Committee Meeting

Earl E. Manges, local attorney, will attend a meeting of the resolutions committee for the State Republican Convention at 10 o'clock this morning at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore.

One important matter that must be decided is whether Mr. Manges will be able to cast one or seven votes for Allegany County at the convention Saturday in Baltimore. He filed as a delegate to the convention on March 5 but the County Republican State Central Committee failed to select the necessary six added delegates to the convention by the April 30 deadline.

This county is entitled to seven votes in state conventions, one for each representative in the General Assembly from this county.

Keech, Chaney Are Nominated

Mrs. Roeder Is Top Vote Getter

Two South Cumberland businessmen were nominated as candidates for mayor in the June 19 general municipal election during yesterday's quiet primary election.

Slightly less than half of the city's registered voters turned up between showers to nominate incumbent J. Edwin Keech and Earl D. Chaney for the mayoral race.

Four other mayoral candidates, Christopher E. Roeder, Edgar D. Growden, A. Lee Marple and Paul A. Shook, trailed way behind the top vote-getters.

The eight Council candidates, according to unofficial but complete returns, will be Mrs. Lucile Roeder, William V. Keegan, G. Ray Light, Frederick J. Hill, Philmore F. Felming, George H. Tederick, Keith T. Sisk and George O. Hollar.

Gets Top Vote

Mrs. Roeder, who is completing a four-year term as finance commissioner, proved to be the top vote getter, and was endorsed by 2,612 voters.

Mr. Keegan, a former police commissioner, placed second with 2,064 votes; G. Ray Light, present water commissioner, was in third place with 1,749 votes.

Frederick J. Hill, making his first political venture, was in fourth place with 1,600 votes; Mr. Fleming, present police and fire commissioner, placed fifth with 1,531; Mr. Tederick, former water commissioner, was sixth with 1,523; Mr. Sisk, who was twice nominated but never elected to Council, received 1,228 votes and Mr. Hollar, making his first try for city office, placed eighth with 961 votes.

Vote Is Light

A total of 5,172 votes were cast in the primary. This represents 49.4 per cent of the 10,468 registered voters and was about 20 per cent less than was predicted, based on past primaries.

Election officials reported early in the day that the vote was light, and it continued that way until the polls closed at 7 p. m.

Unofficial but complete returns from each of the 15 polling places follow:

Is Busy Place

The busiest place during the election was City Registration headquarters at City Hall, where hundreds of calls were received concerning registration.

Most of the calls came from people who were found to be registered but were trying to vote at the wrong polling place.

Most of them had moved and had neglected to notify city voting officials of the change of address.

Most of the other calls came from citizens whose names were stricken from the books for failure to vote during a five-year period.

City registration books will not be open until June 26.

Engineers Say Seneca Dam Would Be Safe

Mathias Seeking Views On Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army engineers say a proposed 84-foot dam on the Potomac River at Seneca, Md., would be relatively safe from natural disaster on enemy attack.

And the threat of flood from any kind of breach, they said, is no greater than the flood possibility that now exists.

The views were expressed in a letter to Rep. Charles Mathias Jr., R-Md.

Mathias told reporters he is seeking a number of individual reports on the proposed dam about 15 miles upstream from Washington in an effort to get as many views as possible and to stimulate public discussion.

Is Controversial

The proposed Seneca dam, which would be the main dam in a system of 16 major and 418 smaller reservoirs outlined in tentative plans for the Potomac River Basin, is a controversial project.

Col. Warren R. Johnson, Army district engineer who recently outlined his recommendations for the basin, wrote Mathias regarding the views of Army engineers concerning the possible dangers to Washington from the dam.

Johnson said studies gave these conclusions:

1. The dam itself is not a remunerative target for a potential enemy.

2. The probability of a long range attack either purposely or accidentally breaching the dam is very small.

3. With the reservoir drawdown to water supply level, the threat of flood in any kind of breach is no greater than the flood possibility that exists now.

Queries Udall

The engineers said earthquake and foundation failures are no problem here because the area has no earthquake potential and the foundations are of solid rock. The type of dam, a gravity concrete structure with an earth wing, is highly resistant to failure from outside sources, the engineers said.

Mathias said he has written to Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall for his views, but has not received a reply.

The congressman said he is disappointed that a dam on the main stem of the Potomac is proposed and would oppose such a project unless it is shown to be absolutely essential to provide metropolitan Washington with enough water.

Hearing Tonight

HANCOCK, Md. (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers will hold the seventh in a series of public hearings here Wednesday night on a proposed $500 million Potomac River Basin development program.

Plans for a $14.5 million dam on the Monocacy River were outlined by corps officials during a hearing in Frederick Monday.

Most of the sentiment expressed at that meeting was against construction of a dam the size of the one proposed. Among the groups opposing the facility was the Board of Carroll County Commissioners.

Emergency Number Still In Effect

The emergency telephone number of the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company—PA 4-2223—is still in effect and is scheduled to be changed June 17.

It was previously announced that the number would be changed as of the first of this month. The number change will be effective with the changeover in telephone numbers of Bowling Green, Cresaptown, LaVale and Potomac Park.

Another Trial Of Automatic Lights Planned

Longer Traffic Cycle To Be Used

The Police Department is completing plans for another test of automatic traffic control on Baltimore Street, Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming said yesterday.

He said the test period will begin Thursday if necessary adjustments to the traffic lights can be completed.

Mr. Fleming said plans call for adding 10 seconds to each vehicular traffic cycle and to leave the Walk cycle unchanged.

Will Observe

Plans call for continuing the trial period for several days if the automatic controls are found feasible, he said.

Mr. Fleming said representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Cumberland Merchants Association will be asked to help check on the results of the test.

He said last week's unsuccessful test showed that most of the trouble occurred when freight trains blocked crossings. Another source of trouble noted was many drivers failed to watch lights closely, and failed to start as soon as they received a green light.

Police said officers will work on the street, with the lights, during the test.

The department, he said, hopes to complete painting traffic lines on Baltimore Street as soon as weather permits.

Paint applied this week, he said, has not been drying properly because of frequent rains and high humidity.

Plan Slanting Lines

Plans are being made to seek the correction of a traffic situation which develops at the intersection of Baltimore and Canal streets.

Mr. Fleming said slanting lines will be painted at the intersection, along with Do Not Block Intersection warnings, so traffic can be kept moving at the point.

He said the city code prohibits the blocking of intersections and that it will be necessary to enforce the rule.

Man Faces Charge In Road Death

Leonard Oliver Bible, 37, of RFD 4, city, yesterday was charged with manslaughter by automobile in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Robertson, 42, of 247 Virginia Avenue, who was fatally injured in a two car collision on May 18 on Route 51.

Bible posted $500 with Magistrate Paul W. Barnett yesterday afternoon and a hearing in the case will be held at a later date in Trial Magistrate Court.

Mrs. Robertson was a passenger in a car operated by Bible when it collided with another auto driven by Paul Derwood Sites, 36, of RFD 2, city.

The victim was taken to Memorial Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival. Death was due to a broken neck.

Trooper Roger Reynolds investigated the crash which occurred on the Oldtown Road about three miles from the city limits. Trooper Reynolds said the Bible vehicle crossed the center of the highway and struck the Sites car.

Bike Tags To Be Sold At City Playgrounds

Local youngsters will be able to purchase bicycle tags at their neighborhood playgrounds again this year, eliminating the necessity of pedaling to City Police Headquarters in downtown Cumberland.

The Cumberland Police and Recreation Departments and the Optimist Club here are cooperating in the sale of tags to those with bikes in "tip-top" operating condition.

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming and Police Chief B. Frank Gaffney yesterday released the following schedule:

Monday, June 25, Columbia Street; Tuesday, June 26, Pennsylvania Avenue; Wednesday, June 27, West Side; Thursday, June 28, Johnson Heights; and Friday, June 29, Centre Street.

Hours for inspection and issuance of tags each day will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Cpl. Oliver Cook of the local police department will be on hand to assist in the inspection program with members of the Optimist Club.

Robert Collins and Harold Brooks, co-chairmen for the service club, said the organization, on behalf of "Bicycle Check Week," sponsored nationally by the Optimists, will issue a safety reflector light to those getting tags.

The bikes will be inspected before tags are issued, according to authorities who remind youngsters that a safe bike includes a horn or bell, headlight, tail light reflector and good brakes.

Last year over 2,000 tags were sold in Cumberland, said Mrs. Margaret Sisk, clerk at police headquarters, who issues licenses which cost 25 cents.

Ridgeley's Homecoming Set For Week Of July 23

Ridgeley's annual homecoming celebration will be held during the week of July 23.

The week-long program, which will include a street parade on Friday evening and a Kiddie's matinee on Saturday, will be held on the ball field in Ridgeley.

Co-sponsors this year are the Ridgeley Volunteer Fire Company and the Volunteer Ambulance Unit.

Leo Rice and Joseph Jewell are co-chairmen for the fire company, Melvin Dawson and Donald Jewell, co-chairmen for the ambulance unit.

They said this year's program will include about 16 rides provided by Fisher Amusements and also about 30 concession stands.

"Early bird" tickets are now on sale and the price is more reasonable than those which will be sold at the ball field during homecoming week.

This is one of the top fund-raising projects of the Ridgeley volunteers.

Another fund raising project of the firemen is the coin cards which are distributed each year.

Some of the cards distributed this year have not been returned. Those who still have them are asked to contact the fire hall and a volunteer will pick it up.
